TO MOTHERS, WIVES, and SISTERS.

Last Night a lady fainted and a gentleman was carried out of the
GAIETY THEATRE
in a fit from the effect of the marvellous acting of the
"WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE."
Thousands of weak and unhappy creatures have been saved from a degraded life through this great play.

A WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE is the most powerful, emotional, and instructive drama that has been produced in Sydney for years. The theatre is crowded, and the audience so powerfully affected that tears are general, and two instances of fainting are recorded.—The Echo, August 1.

OCULAR PROOF.

"Gaiety Hotel, Sydney, August 1, 1883.
"To Herr D. E. BANDMANN.
"Dear Sir,—On Monday night I went to the Gaiety Theatre to witness the play of the WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE, and was so much affected by the plot of the play, and the acting of Miss BEAUDET and yourself, with the Members of your Company, that it sent me off into a fit, and I had to be taken to the Hospital.
"Gratefully yours,
"GEORGE RHODES."

THE BULLETIN, of August 4, says:
"THE WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE
is the best written melodrama we have seen in Sydney for many a long year. The piece obtained
A COMPLETE and PRONOUNCED SUCCESS."

LICENSED VICTUALLERS' GAZETTE, August 4th, says:
"The house is nightly crowded with large and appreciative audiences, in which the clergy largely figure. The drama is HIGHLY MORAL, and has a most elevating tendency."

SUNDAY MAIL of August 4 says:
"GO TO THE GAIETY;
SEE, HEAR,
LEARN, AND BE CONVERTED."

A YEAR'S CRIME.

Day after day, with monotonous iteration, newspapers tell the story of felonies and misdemeanors as these things are brought to light in the supreme and petty courts of the country. It is hard to say if any one, by simply reading such accounts, is able to form either a comprehensive or a clear conception of how large our criminal class is, or how deeply tainted. Those members of the community whose vocation calls them to deal with offending classes are not unlikely to think that all men are sinners. We have heard some of them dilate with evident sincerity upon the rotten state of society, quite forgetting to discount their judgment by the fact that, if honest themselves, they were constantly having to deal with wrongdoers. So much are men influenced by their immediate surroundings, that those who seldom see villany and suffering hardly know what such things mean, though well enough aware that they exist. To deal with our lapsed classes is one of the sternest tasks of Government. Half a century ago the methods of foremost countries were crude and ineffective. They were in fact so bad that at last they excited great scandal, and there was great sympathy with criminal classes on the part of persons who overlooked their sins in contemplating their sufferings. There has been time for the pendulum to swing back, and probably the prisons of to-day, in British countries at all events, are nearly what they ought to be as places of punishment, whatever may be said of them as places in which persons may be purged of criminal instincts and habits.

What is called "prison accommodation" has been made in this colony for nearly 4000 persons; this for our population is about 5 to the 1000, and the gaols are placed thus :—

—	Separate Cells.	Other Cells.	Total.
Sydney (Darlinghurst) ..	346	750	1096
Parramatta	84	180	264
Berrima	75	120	195
Bathurst	68	123	161
Maitland	110	182	292
Goulburn	34	108	142
Grafton	13	39	52
Mudgee	24	72	96
Wagga	11	33	44
Armidale	24	68	92
Yass	15	49	64
Deniliquin	16	64	80
Young	..	42	42

The placing of principal gaols all over the country may facilitate the administration of justice, but it certainly is open to two objections, viz., greater cost, and possibly less efficiency in discipline. And the discipline, though an important factor, is not the only thing to be considered. By slow degrees we have had to learn how to quarter criminals so that their presence shall not be a social nuisance, and so that imprisonment shall not be a slow and cruel process for killing them off. But the objects of incarcerating men go far beyond their safe keeping. Imprisonment ought both to punish and to improve those who need its discipline; and to reach these two ends ways must be found for the suitable employment of prisoners. The extent to which this has been done is considerable, but the whole question of utilising prison labour still awaits discussion. Whenever the best methods shall have been adopted it may be found necessary to aggregate considerable numbers in one place, so as to secure that division of labour which is now necessary in the lower branches of industry as in the higher. But this fact comes into view still more clearly when we examine the personnel of any of our large prisons. The causes of crime may be intemperance, waste, idleness, and such like. To make characters thus afflicted work steadily is the best possible cure for their felonious propensities, and is for some of them the severest form of punishment. For instance, out of a total of 2000 persons sentenced to hard labour, or who were undergoing that punishment during the year, nearly 600 were under 30 years of age, and some of them were under 10 years of age. If labour is of any use at all, and it certainly is of great use, it ought to be forced upon offenders under these ages with unflinching perseverance. But if they are scattered through the 15 principal prisons of the colony, this cannot be done with the best results. Hereafter a classification of prisoners according to their years, health, and skill, and the industries which may be best carried on in the several prisons, may have to be made. There is another point which ought to be looked at; it is this, ought not a larger number of prisoners sentenced to the larger gaols to be put to some useful employment? In the year 1881 no fewer than 13,400 persons were sent to these prisons, but out of that number only about 2000 were sentenced to work. There should be some way of using the other 11,400. Why should they be permitted to put the country to all the expense of their custody, and then to the cost of their maintenance?

The education and illiteracy of our criminal classes furnish reasons why they should be both employed and taught when in prison. In 15,600 persons received into the gaols for trial or under sentence, some 1700 could neither read nor write, and about 600 could read only. Out of the number who could neither read nor write, there were only 124 under 20 years of age. What Public schools may do for us in mitigating crime has yet to be seen; but it has done something, if only so small a number of illiterate youths are now in prison. The total number under 20 years was 850, so that four out of every five could read and write. The total of all the gaols gives 3000 illiterates. The tables, though very elaborate, do not show the educational status of old offenders. It is appalling to think that 3000 and upwards of the persons committed during the year had been committed before, and some of them many times. If we may judge by the returns made, religion has no more restraining power than education. Out of the entire number of committals, amounting to upwards of 15,000, only 80 persons professed no religion. Of pagans there were 146, and of Jews, male and female, there were 42. The larger denominations divide nearly all the remainder after this suggestive fashion :—

—	Males.	Females.	Total.
Church of England ..	4470	712	5182
Roman Catholic	4217	1117	5334
Presbyterian	929	90	1019
Wesleyan	177	17	194
Baptist	30	2	32
Independent	8	1	9

We have no means at hand just now of ascertaining what ratio these criminal sections of the several Churches bear to their total enrolment. The amusing part of it is that nearly every criminal in our prisons claims brotherhood in one or other of the Churches.

Half-a-dozen columns are filled up to show the nationality of our prisoners. This classification is suggestive, and may be exhibited thus :—

—	Males.	Females.	Total.
Australian	3216	774	3990
English	2848	333	3181
Irish	2220	717	2937
Scotch	724	92	816
Other British countries	195	12	207
China	180	..	180
Other countries	655	22	677

The statistical returns not showing how the population of this country is made up, we cannot here indicate what percentage these returns of criminals would give.

Cases brought before superior courts are separated into felonies and misdemeanours, and both these may be again divided, as they are in petty courts, into offences against the person, against property, and against good order. Felonies against the person, in the higher courts, do not show an alarmingly heavy list. They stand under five heads, thus :—

—	Committals.	Convictions.
Murder	7	2
Wounding with intent to murder	1	1
Rape	8	3
Manslaughter	25	19
Shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm	1	1
	42	26

The total of committals under 21 sorts of felony was 169, convictions 116. If to these we add 66 convictions for misdemeanours, we have a total of 182 convictions in the higher courts during the year. It is instructive to note that this is the smallest number recorded during the past 10 years, save the year 1875, which recorded exactly the same number. The average for the decade is 143.2. Convictions in Quarter Sessions for felonies were fewer than in the previous year, but considerably above the average for the decade. The number of convictions for misdemeanours is also below those of the previous three years, but above the average for the past 10 years. There is an appreciable improvement on the past three or four years, and a man with pessimist views of national character could not make it appear from these figures that we are not growing better. Of executions there were 2, the average for the decade being 2·14. It is very obvious that in minor offences there is a great increase in the lower courts. Offences against the person, or against property, do not show a great increase during the past four years in any of the courts, but misdemeanors classed as "other offences" went up by nearly 9000 above the number in 1880.

These dry details may be relieved by an inquiry into some of the probable causes of crime and misdemeanours. The heaviest column of figures is under the head of drunkenness. No fewer than 22,500 persons were taken into custody—or rather so many arrests were made—for drunkenness. To this number may be added a large figure representing offences such as riotous behaviour, using obscene language, and probably nearly every offence against the person. It is well known that nearly all such cases, including murder, are due to drunkenness, and so is nearly every offence against order. If out of 31,000 convictions we take 3500 representing offences against property, nearly all the rest may be put to the credit of intemperance. A glance at the table of offences against property is sufficient to discover that a good many of them are bred of idleness. For instance, larceny is an offence frequently committed by persons under 20 years of age, a good many being under 15, the largest number of offenders being under 30 years. It is the largest figure by far in this category. Probably gambling is the cause of most of the cases set down under the heads of forgery, embezzlement, and illegal disposal of goods. Unfortunately, the figure representing these offences is a large one, and, as might be expected, offenders can most of them read and write; but the number of persons put down under the head of superior education is small. In all they make 161, no fewer than 100 out of that number being placed under the headings for drunkenness and its concomitant offences. There is a curious return placed last in this comprehensive catalogue of crime and vice. It shows the "religions" of persons apprehended by the police during 1881. Church of England, 15,719; Roman Catholic, 19,639; Presbyterians, 3369; Wesleyan, 566; no religion, 574. All of them ought to be under this last head, for it is passing strange that a man should be a Christian felon or a felonious Christian. There is one item in these returns which is noticeable. It is that so large a number of accused persons should be acquitted. Out of 1579 persons placed before superior courts, 400 were acquitted, and as many as 5569 in the inferior courts. There must be something rash or something careless if nearly 6000 persons are annually brought before the courts, and are found to be not guilty. The return showing punishments points out that fines make more than half the penalties inflicted, and that imprisonment in lieu of fines makes more than three-fourths of the remaining cases. Peremptory imprisonment absorbed 3228—a figure running on towards the maximum of our prison accommodation. A very safe conclusion is that, if we could deal more effectually with intemperance and idleness, we should at once sweep away about nine-tenths of these criminal classes?

POLICE.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Mr. Dillon, S.M., presided on the bench in the Central Police Court on Saturday morning.

A number of cases of drunkenness were dealt with.

Thomas Harnett, aged 29, a bricklayer, was charged with having wilfully broken a quantity of glassware valued at 5s., the property of Ernest Marriett. He was fined 10s., or in default imprisonment for 48 hours. On a charge of having assaulted a constable in the execution of his duty, he was fined £5, or in default imprisonment for 14 days.

Mary Lyons, on a charge of having been thrice convicted of drunkenness within the preceding 12 months and behaving in a riotous manner in Clarence-street, was sentenced to be imprisoned for three months, with hard labour.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Mr. Addison, S.M., occupied the bench on Saturday.

Michael Morley and Edward Keogh, aged 24 and 19 years respectively, were charged with having behaved in a riotous manner on the Point Piper-road, Paddington. The prisoners were fighting with one another, and on the interference of the police they created a great disturbance in the locality. They were members of the larrikin class, and had previously been in the hands of the police. Mr. Addison sent them to gaol for seven days without the option of a fine.

Henry Davis and George Clements were brought up on a charge of having refused, when demanded to pay, the sum of 22s. 6d. each, for passage money between Richmond River and Sydney, per s.s. Coraki. They were ordered to forfeit double the amount mentioned; in default to undergo 14 days' imprisonment.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

An inquest was held on Saturday morning, by the City Coroner, on the body of a man whose name is unknown. On Thursday evening last, whilst the deceased was crossing Pitt-street, near Tattersall's Hotel, he was knocked down by a telegraph boy, named George Bowden, riding past on horseback. The horse was cantering at the rate of about six miles an hour at the time, and the boy called out to the man in order to warn him of his approach. He was then only a few yards distant from him, and the deceased appeared to hesitate, and then he rushed across the path of the horse hurriedly. Before he could clear the horse, however, it collided with him and knocked him heavily on to the ground. A witness of the occurrence gave evidence to the effect that the boy was riding carefully, and that he gave sufficient warning to the deceased to enable him to get out of the way. The deceased was taken to the hospital by a Mr. Corlis Cornquest, and he died in the institution on Friday morning from the effects of the injuries he received. The medical evidence went to show that the deceased died from hemorrhage of the ventricles of the brain, which might have been caused by a fall such as the one described. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

There was a very high cross sea with this gale; but as the vessel is light she did not take any water on board. On the 23rd it came away strong from the eastward, and increased to a strong gale with a high cross sea, in which the brig shipped a great deal of water, and some of her deck cargo got adrift. When the storm moderated on the 25th, one of the pumps was found to be damaged and would not work, so on the following day the hatch was opened and necessary repairs effected. On the 27th the weather again became very stormy, the wind coming away fresh from N.W., and there being a heavy sea. H.M.S. NELSON.

Her Majesty's ship Nelson arrived yesterday morning from a cruise amongst the South Sea Islands, her last port of departure being Villa Harbour, in the New Hebrides group. There is nothing of much interest in the record of her cruise, except perhaps there may have been in that relating to the New Hebrides, detailed information with regard to which was not given to us. The Nelson left Sydney on May 19th, and after a voyage that was marked by fine weather and favourable winds, arrived at Suva on the 29th. Whilst lying at Suva the citizens invited the officers to a ball, the invitations were accepted, and the affair passed off very successfully. A return ball was given on board the Nelson to the residents of Suva, and proved a very pleasant gathering. The Commodore left the Nelson on the 1st June, and proceeded in the Miranda to visit several other islands (particulars with regard to which have already appeared in the report of the cruise of the Miranda), and did not return until the 27th June. The Nelson remained at Suva till July 9, when she sailed for Levuka and reached there the same afternoon. In honour of the visit of the flagship the residents of Levuka bestirred themselves right heartily, and organised several native dances, in which men and women from many different islands took part. Balls were also held to which the officers were invited, and there was a cricket match between the officers and the Levuka Cricket Club, which resulted in a draw in favour of the islanders. The Nelson remained at Levuka until the 14th of July, when she got under weigh again, and proceeded to the New Hebrides group. Aneityum was the first island touched at, and the missionaries there had an interview with the Commodore, but what took place thereat we are unable to state. On the 17th, the Nelson went on to Tanna, arriving there at 4.15 p.m. on the following day. Three days were spent at this island, and then the ship proceeded to Erromanga, where she arrived on the 21st. The missionaries stationed at this place also had an interview with the Commodore, and the latter and several of the officers visited the active volcano on this island. The next place touched at was Havannah Harbour, Sandwich Island, where the Nelson arrived on the 22nd, and found the Brunt and D'Estrees, French gunboats, anchored there. The captains of both vessels and the whole of the officers were invited on board the flagship, and were entertained by Commodore Erskine and his officers. After a stay of four days at this port, the Nelson got under weigh again, and cruised round the coast as far as Villa Harbour, where she came to an anchor, and remained there till the 29th. During the interval surveying parties were engaged in making an accurate survey of the whole harbour, which had not been made previously. When this was completed, the Nelson left for Sydney under steam, and experienced mostly light contrary winds and fine weather till she entered the Heads yesterday morning. After being granted pratique the Nelson steamed up the harbour, and was moored to the buoy above Pinchgut. The only bad weather experienced throughout the cruise was at Suva, where a great deal of rain fell. At several of the places touched at, notably Suva and the islands of the New Hebrides group, the natives were permitted to go on board, and they largely availed themselves of the opportunity.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY EVENING.

In the Import markets little of interest transpired to-day, the course of sales being at about late values. A line of 200 tons of Californian flour was placed at a price withheld; quotations for colonial flour are unchanged. The weekly auction sales of horns, bones, and other station produce held this morning passed over without any change in value, there being a good demand.

The Gulf of St. Vincent (s.) arrived to-day from London, via Melbourne, with a general cargo.

The Australian Brewers' Journal gives the following as the increase of the hop production in Victoria during the last seven years:—1876-7, 225 acres, 129,136 lbs.; 1877-8, 274 acres, 218,818 lbs.; 1878-9, 203 acres, 130,816 lbs.; 1879-80, 267 acres, 284,480 lbs.; 1880-1, 428 acres, 307,328 lbs.; 1881-2, 564 acres, 453,040 lbs.; 1882-3, 1034 acres, 1,038,536 lbs. Large extended areas in all directions are being put under crop this season. 67,000 acres is given as the extent of the English hop cultivation of the present year.

According to a recent return (says the British Trade Journal) 28,000,000 bottles of champagne are exported annually, in the following proportions:—Africa, 100,000 bottles; Spain, 300,000; Belgium, 500,000; Italy, 500,000; Holland, 600,000; Germany, 1,500,000; Russia, 2,000,000; England, 5,000,000; Northern America, 10,000,000. The consumption in France is valued at £2,500,000. During the last two years a considerable amount of champagne was manufactured from Italian grapes. A good deal more—unaccounted for in this calculation—was, we suspect, innocent of all connection with the vine. It is said that more "champagne" is consumed on the continent of America in a year than the entire champagne-growing districts of the world could produce in the same period.

THE PRAISES OF PROMINENT MEN.

Office of R. Towns and Co., Sydney, November 14, 1882.

Messrs. Elliott Brothers, Wholesale Druggists, Sydney.

Gentlemen,—Would you oblige me by sending me a case of St. Jacobs Oil for a friend of mine, who is a firm believer in this remedy. He uses it when troubled with rheumatism, and so do various members of his household for various complaints. I always keep a bottle in my own home, as it seems to be a useful household remedy, and, as I mentioned to you, it cured our storekeeper's wife, who was suffering from rheumatism.

Yours faithfully, WM. ED. WILSON.

THE RESULT WAS MOST GRATIFYING.

Sydney, N. S. Wales, July 14, 1883.

Dear Sirs,—The statements of a number of our citizens which are at present being given to the public through the medium of the Press respecting St. Jacobs Oil, suggests to me the propriety of adding my own experience for the benefit of all concerned.

I was recently induced to give this highly praised remedy a trial in severe and painful rheumatism with which my wife was troubled. I confess the result was most gratifying, not only in this case, but in several others among my friends which have come to my notice. The effect in every instance was such as to convince me that St. Jacobs Oil conquers pain, and is therefore fully worthy of the highest praise.

Very respectfully, E. A. LITTLE. Manager American Novelty Co., 201 and 203, Pitt-street, Sydney.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

MONDAY, AUGUST 6, 1883.

In refusing a new trial in the case of ANDERSON v. FAIRFAX, Sir JAMES MARTIN elaborately expounded what he considered to be the law of privilege as attached to comments on public men and public institutions, and also defended that law as based on sound policy. We are compelled to differ from him on both points, and are further of opinion that, even if his main arguments were sound, the case under consideration presented exceptions that did not bring it under any of the precedents cited. In the case of M'PHERSON v. DANIELS the slander was not at all true, nor was the libel at all true in the case of CAMPBELL v. SPOTTISWOODE. In both instances the defamatory matter was unjustified and unjustifiable ab initio. The cases cited by Mr. DARLEY are much more apropos, and the law as laid down in them would acquit the Herald. In the case of ANDERSON v. FAIRFAX the comments were shown to have been in the main justifiable; and it is only on some marginal amount, not of error, but of unproved statements, that the alleged libel lies. Sir JAMES MARTIN, however, has laid down the law so broadly, and so rigidly, that it is tantamount to this—that it matters not how much truth there is in an article, or how much public service is rendered by it, if there is a percentage of defamatory matter not proved, an action will lie for libel. Thus it matters not how great a rogue a man may be who is shown up, nor how great is the public service in exposing him, if the exposure involves any defamatory matter for which adequate legal proof is not forthcoming in Court, then to that extent the journalist is liable to an action, and to substantial damages.

We hold that this is neither sound law nor sound policy, and that for this reason,—so strict a construction makes the exposure of abuses practically impossible. We do not, of course, mean to imply that it is impossible to tell the truth about a public abuse without mixing up with it some falsehood, but we do say that it is extremely difficult to do so without running the risk of making some statement for which strict and adequate evidence is not producible; and it is not to the public interest that criticism on public affairs should be made so hazardous.

We are not, of course, pleading for license. A venomous, licentious, and unpunishable press would be a frightful curse to a civilised community. Sir JAMES MARTIN seems to be haunted by the idea that the press is contending to be put in possession of such rights—to be able to say what it likes, however injurious to private character, and to shelter itself under the plea that it meant well, and did not know better. In this he is mistaken, but in trying to lay down that doctrine he has gone to the other extreme of making useful and justifiable comments almost as dangerous as comments libellous in spirit as well as in matter.

The question of privilege as discussed by the Court is looked at in two aspects: first, as respects the general right of comment on public men and institutions; and secondly, as respects the special privilege acquired when the person affected has voluntarily, and for his own interest, invited comment. In our judgment, the article was justified on both grounds, but most especially on the latter; and we may remark that there is no precedent in all the cases cited for such an extent of privilege as the Herald acquired in respect of the ANDERSONS. For whatever may be thought about their philanthropy, it must be admitted that the report was desired and solicited for their direct personal and pecuniary gain, and that on inquiry it turned out that such gain was inconsistent with the public interest. We think Mr. Justice FAUCETT formed the truer estimate of the right acquired under such an invitation as that of the ANDERSONS. We grant, of course, that the invitation did not mean "come and tell lies." It would be absurd to construe such an invitation as a surrender by Mrs. ANDERSON of all protection of her own and her husband's character, and that is not what is claimed. What is claimed is that the right of invitation was not abused, that a fair and reasonable exercise of discretion was made by the reporter, and that if from what he saw and heard he made statements and inferences which were not subsequently proved to be true, he did not in making such statements and inferences go beyond his acquired right, seeing that from first to last there was no inaccurate statement and not a shade of malice. He was invited there expressly for the purpose of forming a favourable impression of the institution, and communicating that impression to the public. The right to form a favourable impression carried with it the right to form an unfavourable one. The ANDERSONS in inviting him ran the risk of his seeing and saying more than they wished, and they ran that risk for their own benefit. The argument suggested from the Bench, that the reporter was not invited to catechise the boys, and that therefore that right was not conveyed, is mere quibbling, worthy of a pleader, but not of a judge. He was invited to go to the place for the purpose of getting information and forming his impressions, and that involved the right of catechising everybody on the place. There were only three parties on the premises from whom he could get information, namely, the proprietors, the employees, and the children. He catechised all three. He gave the statements of each as on their own authority, and the public were left to judge of the goodness of the authority for themselves. The ANDERSONS got the benefit of what they said in their own favour, although it is quite impossible to prove the truth of their statements, and they got the disadvantage of what the boys said to their discredit. Both sets of statements were associated with the authorities for them. In addition to that, Mr. LYNE gave his impressions on some points. It was contended that the Herald was bound to prove that his impressions were justified. To this we altogether demur. He was invited to form his impressions, and he did form them. Suppose he erred in judgment—that was not libel. He thought that some of the signatures in the book were fictitious, and he mentioned the similarity of the handwriting as the ground of his suspicions. The fact was true, even if the inference was erroneous. He thought the children looked underfed, and the fact that they improved at the Benevolent Asylum—which, to borrow a squatting phrase, can hardly be considered good fattening country—certainly corroborated his impression. But suppose he was wrong—he was invited to form his impressions, and he did so. "Oh, but," it is said, "to state that you have formed such an impression is libel." We hold that under the invitation given it was not. How could a reporter possibly give a truthful account of a visit if he did not frankly indicate the impression which that visit produced upon him? But Sir JAMES MARTIN holds that all unfavourable impressions must be kept out of the report unless the full quantum of legal evidence to sustain them is producible in court. Let us test this doctrine by supposing an extreme case. Let us suppose that the children had been very badly treated, and had said so, and that theirs was the only evidence producible to prove it, and that instead of being ill with the itch when they were removed to the asylum, they had been ill of scarlet fever, or diphtheria, or typhoid, and had died there. Their evidence would have been unobtainable, and as the defamatory statements could not have been proved, they would have been libellous.

We feel satisfied that the common sense of the public will see that the right of comment under the restrictions Sir JAMES MARTIN imposes is practically a right too dangerous to use to the extent to which the public interest requires its use. It is akin to the right of SHYLOCK to his pound of flesh but not to one drop of blood. If the right exists, it must carry with it everything that is necessary to make that right practically available, and from this it follows that there must be some regard to the proportion of truth and error in an unfavourable comment, and in the general justifiableness of the comment taken as a whole.

The deputation that brought under the notice of the COLONIAL TREASURER certain matters connected with the Government Printing Office made a number of complaints of a technical character about the management of the establishment. These Mr. DIBBS undertook to study carefully before giving the deputation a reply. The deputation, however, complained further that the Government Printing Office enters improperly into competition with private enterprise. And this question Mr. DIBBS said he could settle at once: the deputation had made out no case against the Government establishment for the printing of any of the books referred to. It was easy for Mr. DIBBS to say this to the deputation, but the charge is far too grave to be disposed of in that manner. The fact is that, whether the deputation made out a case or not, a very strong case against the Government Printing Office exists; and nothing but indifference, or neglect of duty, or an improper regard for vested interests on the part of members of Parliament, will prevent some change of policy in relation to that establishment.

The deputation complained of the printing and publication by the Government of such works as reports of learned societies; "Art Criticism," by Mr. MONTEFIORE; "Art Instruction," by Mr. PLUMMER; "Artillery Exercises," by Captain HOPKINS; "Immigration," by Dr. LANE; "New South Wales: its Progress and Resources," by Mr. ROBINSON. Mr. DIBBS' answer was that "the whole of these publications were of an educational character, and for the instruction of the masses, and that they were fair matter on which to employ the resources of the Government Printing Office. The proceedings of the Royal Society contained matter of a highly scientific and valuable nature, and might with great advantage be handed over to our technical schools. The other books mentioned came within a similar category." A glance at that answer is enough to show that the TREASURER can hardly have given to this question of public policy the careful study which he admits the minor questions of wages and trade usage arising out of the internal management of the office deserve. What does he mean by "a similar category"? Can treatises on art criticism and immigration be fairly classed together? Can reports of proceedings of the Royal Society, elaborate papers on the Hawkesbury sandstone, for instance, stand on the same footing with a manual of artillery exercises? Are they all alike "for the instruction of the masses"? Are not some of them rather "caviare to the million"? But they are all, he says, "of an educational character." Is the work on immigration to be a text-book in the technical schools? The TREASURER probably means that all these works will add something to the information of people who read them. But is that a suffiolent reason why the Government should print or publish them? The newspapers are more or less "educational" in that sense; but would the Government venture, on the strength of this plea, to bring out a daily newspaper? The Government publishes the Gazette, but its contents consist of official notices. The "educational" theory, if it were true, would prove too much. Where is its application to stop? It would cover the policy of printing the books that are required in the Public schools of the colony, and cheap editions of all the classics.

There is no satisfactory reason why the Government should become a printing and publishing firm for educational purposes in the mere fact that there are reasons why the Government may find it convenient to have a printing office under its own control for official purposes. We do not deny the convenience of possessing such an establishment, where confidential matters are concerned, though it is at least an open question whether nine-tenths of the official printing of the Government could not be done as well and as cheaply—perhaps more so—under private contract. But admitting for argument's sake that there may be some advantages in having official printing done at a Government printing office, it does not follow that the enlargement of the scope of the business for the printing and publication of non-official works is thereby justified. Even if it were admitted that the Government might legitimately in some cases go out of its way to facilitate the publication of works not strictly official in character, it does not follow that the Government does well in using its official printing-office for such purposes. The Government has engineering shops at Redfern for the repair of its railway rolling-stock. That may be a wise policy or it may not. Say that it is. But that is no sufficient reason why the Government should take private orders there for the construction of machinery, or employ people there in working out the ideas of inventors or in executing fancy work that has only a remote relation, or no relation at all, to the business of government.

It will be said that some of the work turned out of the Government Printing Office could not have been executed at any private establishment in the city. That may be true as to times past. It may be true as to the present. We do not undertake to declare whether it is or not. Either supposition will serve for our argument. It is the present we have to consider. If the statement be untrue now it is valueless in support of continuing the system that has been followed, unless the advocates of that system are prepared to argue that the Government would do well to enter into all sorts of manufacturing or commercial undertakings in competition with private enterprise. Why should not the Government make boots and shoes for the people as well as print "educational" works for the people, when both can be provided for the people by private enterprise? Let us suppose, however, that the statement is true, and that, although private enterprise is capable of supplying the boots and shoes, it is not equal to the task of "educational" printing. Is that a state of things to be proud of in such a city as Sydney? Is it a state of things to be content with, or to perpetuate? Private enterprise in the printing trade must be at a low level under these conditions; and the natural inference is, that the policy of successive Governments in unduly enlarging the operations of the Government Printing Office has kept it there. The continuance of that policy would tend to keep it there in future, by discouraging investment on the part of private printers.

There is also the financial aspect of the question to be considered. The estimate for the Government Printing Office for this year was nearly £46,000, besides "a further sum" of £17,000 for additions to buildings. The sum appropriated for the establishment for 1878 was not quite £23,000. What is the cause of this remarkable increase?—the expansion of legitimate official work, or the execution, and preparation for the execution, of work that does not properly belong to the Government? If there were no other reason, the rapid growth of the expenditure on this overgrown establishment would be a good reason why the Government should be required to call a halt and then proceed by a different track. It is probable that the public printing bill would be far smaller than it is if Governments, instead of merely giving orders to Mr. RICHARDS, had to obtain the special sanction of Parliament before entering upon any of these publishing speculations. And as to people who are assisted in their enterprises by having the Government Printing Office placed at their disposal, a saving would probably be made by converting this assistance into the form of a direct grant of money, which would have to be asked for and voted. Parliament would then know what was being done; now it does not.

The formation of a Newsboys Brigade is a matter to call for congratulation, being in its very inception a strong and rational effort to better the condition of a class of boys peculiarly susceptible to all the dangers of undisciplined street life, and perpetually increasing, and destined to increase, in this city. The newsboys already muster up to some hundreds, many are in a minor degree capitalists, all exposed to many temptations to dishonesty, and yet as honest perhaps as any other body of capitalists, knowing full well that honesty is the best policy. There are rascals amongst them of course; many of them are ragged, dirty, cheeky rather than insolent. As a rule, they are in need of much pity and assistance; but still to the attentive observer they present the redeeming point of an unmistakable trait—their general honesty. They are boys amenable to better influences, and it will be the direct aim of this new organisation to exert such influences amongst them. We know how much has been done by the Shoeblack Brigade of London, and with better material we should do much more here. The newsboys are very well-to-do little vagabonds; many of them in their hour or two of afternoon work, and on the better days with the rackets, earn wages that surpass the average earnings of the full-grown English agricultural labourer. What they do with the money is a more difficult question, one to which the directors of the movement will by-and-bye probably be able to afford an answer. Certainly it does not go to shoemakers or clothiers. Some goes in gambling; but then the newsboys are conservative. They gamble amongst themselves, and if there were any large accumulation of funds some of them should ere this have developed into bookmakers. We are not prepared to deny that these developments may have taken place. There is nothing in the ordinary bookmaker to contradict the assumption that he is the natural expansion of the ordinary newsboy. But we hope, for the newsboys' credit, that they are not frequent. We desire better things for the newsboys. A good deal of the money goes home, probably—and to what homes! The association may have something to say in reply to that question also. Its founders should follow the boys from their labour to their homes, and possibly improve both. But its primary and chief duty should be to elevate the boys by recognising their occupation as one to be pursued on conditions of respectability, and not of necessity associated with vagabondage and filth. The newsboy can earn more than the ordinary office boy, and has far larger opportunities—or, to speak more accurately, leisure—for education and play. He simply needs teaching to use those things which are his own to make him a respectable member of society.

It is a long time since Tasmania found herself burdened with riches. For thirty years she has been struggling with difficulties, natural and unnatural; she is only now reaping her reward in the triumph of better methods, and real success. She has an improved revenue, and the MINISTER FOR LANDS says that there is a considerable increase in the number of applications for land. This is a good sign, provided that it is the result not of a too liberal land policy, but of the increased use which can be made of the soil. If the Government offered to give away the whole of the country, no doubt there would be applications in excess of the offer; and in that case the success of the policy would deserve little praise. What people want is to see that they can use the land to profit, and the first cost of it is not of so much account. Apparently there is a genuine revival of husbandry in the little island. At one time some really good farming was attempted there. Even small men went in for thorough work and a liberal use of artificial manures. The returns were good, good enough to justify the means used. But, alas for the farmer! Where was he to find an adequate market? That will always be a question of urgency to Tasmanians so long as they grow such products as require immediate, or almost immediate, consumption. The island lacks people, and its circumstances are almost the reverse of those of England. In the latter there is a large population, requiring many things for immediate use. To supply such is now the hope of the English farmer. In that line he will always compete successfully with the producer who is at a distance; but the distant competitor will outstrip him in the production of those necessaries of life which grow in new countries, where land is cheap, and where labour, if dear when it has to be paid for, can be at once used by those who possess it, for their own personal advantage. Tasmania should be able to take her place in this line of things; and it is gratifying to see another effort, if not strictly a new one, to settle population on the arable and pastoral lands of the country. There must be in the island a good deal more wealth in minerals than has yet been discovered. Mineral industries help the agricultural in more ways than one. If the two can be encouraged to live side by side it will solve one of the hitherto knotty problems of Tasmania. There is a chance and a hope. Let a little more money be spent on works which develop resources, and less on mere governmental works, and there will yet be a future for this little country.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE annexation question is still agitating the public mind in England, especially since the publication of the Agent-Generals' joint despatch. The Times thinks that if the colonies co-operate there can be no objection on the part of the Imperial Government to the policy of annexation. The St. James' Gazette thinks the publication of the despatch marks a momentous period in the relations between England and the colonies. The Daily News is of opinion that the aborigines will probably be gainers by colonial protection. The newspapers generally imply that the difficulty is merely a financial one, and they suggest that the colonies should make definite proposals as to what they are prepared to do.

THE assassin O'Donnell was brought before the Police Court at Port Elizabeth, on Saturday, charged with the murder of James Carey. After hearing the evidence the prisoner was formally committed to take his trial at the forthcoming criminal assizes at Port Elizabeth, the original intention of sending him home to England having been abandoned. The Morning Post considers it a deadly insult to the colonies that the Phœnix Park informers should be sent out here, and thinks we have a right to exclude them. It is stated that a Dublin resident, now in Melbourne, was informed of their departure directly the vessel sailed, and was instructed to arrange for their murder. One of the jurors is said to have recognised the informers on board the Pathan, Smith, it is said, is proceeding to Brisbane.

ONE of the most important items in our cable intelligence is that the cholera in Egypt is abating its ravages, both among the British troops and the native inhabitants. In consequence of the strict quarantine arrangements at the various continental ports, the Imperial Government have ordered that the landing of mails at Suez and Alexandria shall be temporarily suspended. Instead of using the Egyptian railway the mails will be carried straight through the canal, which will effect a saving of time. The following arrangements have been made by the P. and O. Company in connection with the passenger service:—Passengers leaving Venice and Brindisi, proceeding eastward, will join the London trunk service at Port Said, and those who travel across the continent can leave Venice or Brindisi fortnightly in the steamers proceeding direct through the canal, without touching at any of the Egyptian ports. The P. and O. Company have also decided to accelerate the speed of the homeward packets to Plymouth, in order to obviate any delay or inconvenience that might occur to the passengers through being quarantined at the continental ports.

THE Annamites, according to our cable intelligence, have re-occupied the position from which they were recently driven. France has demanded that the Chinese shall withdraw their troops from the frontier, or otherwise she threatens a naval demonstration against Canton.

ANOTHER sharp shock of earthquake took place on Saturday in the Island of Ischia, at Forio, a small town on the western coast, with a population of about 6000. Several houses were destroyed, but no loss of life is reported at present.

OUR budget of cable news contains several items of interest. Among other matters it will be seen that the wretched farce of a trial of Hungarian Jews for the alleged murder of a Christian girl, for the purpose of mingling her blood in the Passover ceremonies, has terminated by the acquittal of the prisoners. There is news in Paris from Tonquin that King Tuduc is dead, and has been succeeded by Phudac. The chief excitement in Paris, however, arises from the discovery of a plot for the restoration of the legitimate monarchy. The police, it is said, are in possession of documents of a compromising character. The Earl and Countess of Rosebery are in the John Elder on their way to pay a visit to the colonies. With regard to the proposal to construct a cable to West Australia, via Ceylon and Singapore, Sir Julius Vogel estimates the cost at a million, and the Economist advises that there should be an eastern extension immediately the South Australian Government decides upon a reduction of the charges. The Morning Advertiser urges the London brewers to make a test of the quality of Australian hops.

TELEGRAMS have passed between the Colonial Secretary of this colony and the Colonial Secretary of Victoria with regard to the Irish informers on board the Pathan, and we understand that of three of the men who were identified by the Victorian detectives—Kavanagh, Joe Smith, and Hanlon—one intends to come on to Sydney, the destination of the other two being Melbourne. The intention of the Government of Victoria was to put the men on board the Victorian warship Nelson, and to keep them there until they could be sent away from the colony, but the difficulty with regard to this has been the absence of any legal power to detain the men against their will, for by application to the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus they would be able, if confined on board the Nelson, to at once regain their liberty. Mr. Service telegraphed to Mr. Stuart asking him if he could relieve the Victorian Government from their difficulty by putting the men in some place of safety until they could be deported at the expense of the Victorian Government to some other country. But Mr. Stuart did not see his way clear to do this. He suggested, however, that if Mr. Service could arrange with the three men to go voluntarily on board the Nelson until arrangements could be made for sending them somewhere or other, this colony would bear its share of the expense of their deportation. According to the information Mr. Stuart has received, the Victorian Government found it very difficult to prevent the men from landing, for both the men and the captain of the steamer insisted upon their being allowed to land. Two of the men identified—Kavanagh and Smith—persistently denied their identity, but Hanlon, who also at first denied that he was the man he was said to be, eventually confessed that he was Hanlon. Mr. Stuart has not yet decided what he will do in the case of the man who intends to come on to Sydney; but the Pathan is not expected to arrive here until to-morrow, and a course of action will probably be decided upon to-day.

ON Saturday the Hon. Alexander Stuart had a long interview with the agents of the Orient Steamship Company with reference to employing their vessels for immigration purposes, and though the interview did not result in a definite agreement the negotiations have assumed such a form that the Government have been able to telegraph to England upon the subject, and there is no doubt that the matter will be brought to a practical issue. The immigrants will not be carried by the ordinary steamships belonging to the company which come through the Suez Canal, but they will be brought by steamships specially set apart for the conveyance of cargo and immigrants, and they will come to the colony via the Cape of Good Hope, or via the Cape and Tasmania if the Tasmanian Government join in the project, which, we understand, they are inclined to do. This route will do away with the necessity, which when passing through the Suez Canal is incidental to a voyage from England, of calling at various ports, and encountering the hot weather of the Red Sea. In no case in which a steamer is carrying immigrants will there be conveyed any passengers but those who take berths in the saloon. The second-class saloon will be specially set apart for the accommodation of the single women immigrants, and generally the arrangements will be similar to those which are observed under the existing regulations with regard to immigrant sailing ships.

THE Hon. G. H. Reid, Minister of Education, will leave Sydney to-night on his northern tour. He will remain to-morrow in Newcastle, where he has some relatives residing, and on Wednesday will proceed from Newcastle to Tamworth.

IT is probable that Kalakaua, King of Hawaii, will shortly visit the Australian colonies, and the Acting Consul for that kingdom, Mr. Ernest O. Smith, has been instructed by the Government at Honolulu to make the required arrangements for his Majesty's reception in the various colonies.

H.M.S. NELSON returned to port yesterday morning, after a cruise amongst the South Sea Islands. Her last port of call was Villa Harbour, in the New Hebrides. Commodore Erskine was interviewed by several of the missionaries at this group; but the naval authorities are reticent with regard to what was said. The French man-of-war Bruat and D'Estrees were in Havannah Harbour when the Nelson sailed, and the captains and officers of both vessels were entertained by the Commodore on board the Nelson. Villa Harbour, on the coast of Sandwich Island, New Hebrides group, was surveyed by parties from the Nelson.

THE remains of the Very Rev. Dr. Forrest were, with all becoming solemnity, interred in the Petersham Cemetery on Saturday last. The obsequies at St. Mary's Cathedral and at the grave were of an unusually impressive character. Nearly all the Roman Catholic clergy of the city and suburbs assisted at the dirge and requiem in St. Mary's, Dean Sheridan, V.G., Dean Hanly, Dean Flanagan, Dean O'Brien, Dean M'Carthy, Dean Mahony, the Very Rev. J. Dalton, S.J., and Very Rev. P. L. Dunne, O.S.F., being the principal clerical dignataries present; and during the ceremony in the cathedral the coffin, covered by a pall and wreaths of roses and violets, rested on a bier. Shortly after 2 o'clock the remains were borne from the cathedral to the hearse, at the western entrance, and as the mourners left the building the solemn tones of the organ mingled with the tolling of the bells. Most of the vehicles in the cortege were private carriages, and the simplicity and good taste of the arrangements added to the dignity and order of the funeral. During his lifetime Dr. Forrest made many friends outside of the denomination to which he belonged, and it was not surprising that among the mourners on Saturday there should have been some who, though holding opposite religious opinions, were desirous of paying respect to the memory of one who was himself a man of liberal and enlightened views, and whose sympathies were as broad as his heart was kind. Among the gentlemen who attended the funeral were—Sir John Robertson, K.C.M.G., M.L.A.; Sir Patrick Jennings, K.C.M.G., M.L.A.; his Honor Mr. Justice Faucett, W. A. Duncan, C.M.G.; T. M. Slattery, M.L.A.; John Donovan, LL.D.; J. S. Paterson, LL.D.; W. E. Plunkett, Under-Secretary of Justice; John Hughes, J.P.; William Hughes, J.P.; John Bird, J.P.; F. B. Freehill, M.A.; M. E. Maher, B.A.; F. J. M'Carthy, M.A.; Dr. Gilhooley, Mr. Thomas Butler, Mr. E. Ellis, Mr. E. F. Flanagan, Mr. B. Mulroney, and Mr. R. O'Connor. At the cemetery the funeral service was read by the Right Rev. Dr. Lanigan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Goulburn, assisted by the Rev. J. M. Garaval, the Rev. D. P. Quirk, M.A., and the Rev. J. J. Carroll, of Balmain. The grave of the deceased clergyman is not in the enclosure set apart as a burial-place for the clergy, but in the general cemetery, a short distance from the marble monument that covers the resting-place of the venerable Dr. Polding, first Archbishop of Sydney.

MR. P. J. HOLDSWORTH redelivered on Saturday evening, in the large hall of the School of Arts, his lecture upon "Egypt under the Pharoahs and under the Turks," in connection with the Technical College. The hall was crowded, and the audience were thoroughly interested from first to last in the lecturer's able treatment of his subject.

AT the third annual exhibition of the Art Society of New South Wales to be held on the 1st October, it is intended to have an art union, and in addition to the prizes—which will range in value from two to 50 guineas—each subscriber will be presented with a reproduction of Mr. Piguenit's monochrome, "Mount Kosciusko and the Valley of the Upper Murray." We have had an opportunity of seeing this reproduction, which is a photograph of the original, and the work has been very faithfully done. The valley through which the river winds until it is almost lost at the base of the mountains is admirably shown, the perspective being perfect, and the various details of the picture are also well brought out.

AT a public meeting held at the Temperance Hall on Saturday evening resolutions were carried in favour of the speedy establishment of local self-government throughout the colony, with provision for an extension of the powers now possessed by municipal councils in regard to water supply, sewerage, and similar matters; and the creation of shire councils or divisional boards having control of all matters of local administration, and the execution of all local works.

AN election took place on Saturday for three aldermen to represent Tunks Ward in the municipality of St. Leonards, North Shore. The district taken in by Tunks Ward, and which has only recently been declared as a ward in connection with the municipality of St. Leonards, comprises the localities of Mossman's Bay, Middle Head, George's Head, and the Spit. The three seats for the representation of the ward were contested by the following candidates, viz., Francis Adams, W. J. M'Leod, Archibald M'Alpine, and Henry Orriell. Locally there was a good deal of interest attached to the election, and the state of the poll at its close was as follows:—M'Alpine, 95 votes; Adams, 59 votes; M'Leod, 57 votes; Orriell, 22 votes. The three first-named candidates were declared duly elected by the returning officer, Mr. J. Musgrave, Mayor of St. Leonards. At the same time a plebiscite was taken in connection with Tunks Ward, in conformity with the provisions of the local option clause of the Licensing Act, as to whether there should be an increase of public-house licenses in the ward. Twenty votes were given in favour of an increase and 56 against.

THE Corporation steam roller discovered a "soft" place opposite the Town Hall on Friday. That portion of George-street lying between Park and Bathurst streets is about to be paved with wooden cubes. The surface of the old road has been removed, and prior to the work of laying the cubes being proceeded with, the ground is being rolled with the roller in order that the foundation of the new road may be consolidated. As the roller weighs about 30 tons, it will be easily understood that such a ponderous piece of machinery cannot pass over a piece of ground without severely testing the work

THE P. AND O. COMPANY'S SERVICE.

LONDON, Aug. 3.

In consequence of the difficulty in carrying out the previous arrangements for the conveyance of mails and passengers through Egypt, owing to the strict quarantine at the various continental ports, the Imperial Government has suspended the landing of the mails at Suez and Alexandria, and their transport by the Egyptian railway; and at the same time have sanctioned their conveyance via the Suez Canal. The following arrangements have been made by the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company in connection with the passenger service:—Passengers leaving Venice and Brindisi for the voyage eastward will join the London trunk services at Port Said. Those travelling via the Continent can moreover leave Venice or Brindisi fortnightly in a steamer proceeding direct via the Canal, without touching at any Egyptian ports. Strict quarantine having been established in respect to all arrivals from Egypt at Italian and French ports, the Peninsular and Oriental Company have consequently decided to accelerate the speed by the homeward packets to Plymouth, in order that passengers by this means will be able to avoid the delay and in convenience occasioned through being quarantined at the continental ports.

THE PACIFIC ANNEXATION QUESTION.

[BY CABLE.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Aug. 4.

The joint despatch drawn up at the request of the Agents-General of the Australasian colonies by Sir F. Dillon Bell, Agent-General for New Zealand, setting forth their views on the Pacific Annexation Question, and forwarded to the Earl of Derby, Secretary of State for the Colonies, has been published.

The Times, in referring to the terms of the despatch, remarks that if the colonies agree to co-operate in regard to annexation, it will not be an easy matter for the Imperial authorities to object to such a policy.

The St. James' Gazette, in reviewing the question, considers that the despatch of the Agents-General marks a momentous period in the relations between England and the colonies.

The Daily News also refers to the subject, and is of opinion that the natives of the Pacific Islands proposed to be annexed will in all probability be the gainers by joint colonial protection.

The newspapers generally imply that the chief difficulty in the way of annexation is to be found in the financial aspect of the question, and it is suggested that the colonies should make definite proposals as to the amount they are prepared to contribute towards the cost of annexation.

THE VICTORIAN GOVERNMENT AND THE IRISH INFORMERS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, SATURDAY.

Matters with respect to the Irish informers on board the Pathan remain in much the same state as they were yesterday evening. The three men who are being watched by the police, and who are not allowed as yet to leave the steamer, are without doubt the informers Kavanagh, Smith, and Hanlon. Kavanagh and Hanlon are both booked for Melbourne, and the other one has taken his passage for Sydney. The master of the Pathan had an interview with the Premier to-day, and complained to him in strong terms about the conduct of the police sent on board the vessel. The result of his charges against the officers was that Mr. Service decided to instruct the Chief Commissioner of Police to have an inquiry made. The authorities will decide on Monday what steps shall be taken when the Pathan leaves as proposed for Sydney in the morning; whether to insist on the three obnoxious individuals named being kept on the vessel, or whether to transfer them to another ship. Two detectives from Sydney were on board the Pathan to-day, and had the three informers pointed out to them. A great many people tried to get on to the ship to-day, with a view to obtaining a glimpse of the men under police surveillance, but only a few succeeded. Kavanagh, Hanlon, and Smith tell the detectives that they were put on board the Pathan by the Scotland Yard officials in London, and that their passages were paid them by the Imperial Government. Mr. Service is in communication with the Premier of New South Wales on the subject, and it is clear from what the latter says that there will be strong official opposition to these men being put out at Sydney. The Pathan is expected to leave for Sydney on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. She afterwards goes to Newcastle for coal, and will subsequently convey horses to India.

A telegram was laid on the table of the House, from Sir Julius Vogel and Mr. Audley Coote, agreeing to take the proposed York and Eucla railway eastward via Hampton Plains, instead of via Etieup, which is on the Blackwood, 190 miles south of Perth. Hampton Plains is considered by far the best route, but the connection of the Eastern district with Albany by the land-grant railway was not included in Sir Julius Vogel and Mr. Coote's scheme; whereas it is in the others, and this is regarded as of great importance to the progress of the colony.

THE BISHOPRIC OF SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Referring to the telegram in this morning's Herald in which it is stated that the Rev. Canon Barry has accepted the Bishopric of Sydney, will you allow me to say that there must be some error in the announcement, inasmuch as the provisions of the Ordinance of the Synod for the appointment of Bishops to the See of Sydney would prevent any offer being made at the present time in England, which could be accepted, as indicated by the telegram.

Yours, &c.,

Colonel Wells, commanding the volunteer artillery, inspected No. 5 Battery this afternoon. The visit was unexpected, and the proficiency of the battery corps was fully proved. The colonel expressed his fullest satisfaction at the various evolutions, and complimented Captain Kirkaldy and Lieutenants Rose and Aggar upon the proficiency the battery has attained.

The weather is changeable.

The miners have subscribed £10 towards the funds for the relief of Bernard Quin, who suffered severe injury from an explosion at the Maitland waterworks some time since.

There was a dense fog outside Nobby's all the morning. Several vessels are ready for sea; pilots and tug boats also are ready, but all were afraid to venture out.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Farmers' Co-operative Company, to consider the articles of association will be held on the 14th instant. 530 farmers have already taken shares.

The farmers here generally disapprove of the action of Mr. Mitchell in coming at the present time and advocating the Hunter River Farmers' Association after they had gone so far with their movement. He is making no impression. His meeting yesterday at Grafton was only attended by two farmers.

Stock on the Bogan is now perishing in many places. This district requires more rain badly, but the surrounding districts are far worse off for feed and water. Heavy rain now, though doing a deal of good, would probably cause great losses amongst the stock on the Bogan and on the back creeks, &c.

The stock entries especially are highly satisfactory, there being not less than 207 horse exhibits, 171 cattle, and 239 sheep exhibits, several of which latter represent pens of three or more animals.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own correspondent.)

GOULBURN, Saturday.

Mr. Lemm, contractor for the new gaol, celebrated the completion of his contract by a dinner to the workmen and citizens. About 250 people were present. The tables were laid out in one of the work rooms at the gaol. Mr. Lemm occupied the chair, having on his right Messrs. Kethel and Harold M'Lean, and on his left Messrs. W. Teece, M.L.A., and J. T. Gannon, M.L.A. The proceedings were commenced with the presentation of an address and a testimonial to Mr. Spence, foreman of the works, from the mechanics employed thereon. The Mayor read the address and handed over the testimonial, with a few well-chosen remarks. After attention had been devoted to the viands glasses were charged, and the customary loyal toasts of "The Queen," "The Governor," and "The Parliament" were given. The latter was responded to by Messrs. Teece and Gannon. The toast of "The Colonial Architect and his Officers, and the Comptroller-General of Prisons" was responded to by Mr. M'Lean. The toast of "The Municipal Institutions" was responded to by the Mayor, Mr. William Davies, with some very well-chosen remarks. The toast of "The Agricultural, Commercial, and Financial Interests" having been responded to, Mr. Gannon then proposed the health of the contractor. He said they were well aware of Mr. Lemm's ability as a contractor; also of the very satisfactory relations existing between him and his employees, and of the high opinion entertained of their host by the representatives of the Government. Mr. Gannon's remarks were received with tremendous applause, as was also Mr. Lemm's reply. Various other toasts followed, and were suitably acknowledged, which concluded the proceedings. The buildings are expected to be finished by the end of the year; there are between 200 and 300 cells for prisoners, besides workrooms, chapel, offices, etc. The contract is pronounced to have been, so far, very faithfully carried out. The total cost will be about £60,000.

THE TURF.

The general entry for the Australian Jockey Club Spring Meeting is to close with Mr. T. S. Clibborn, the secretary, at 4 p.m. to-day, when a very brilliant programme will need attention. The terms for the different events are extremely liberal, and as the prizes are rich, a long list of nominations is expected. The first forfeit for the Great Metropolitan Stakes and the Melbourne Cup will fall due at the same hour, when it is hoped that very few horses of prominence will be struck out. The right to the gate and other racecourse properties of the Tattersall's August Meeting will be disposed of by public auction to-day, and the weights for the handicaps to be run at the meeting will also be declared. Commotion, Santa Claus, and Magnet have been scratched for the Metropolitan Stakes.

Our correspondent at Lismore telegraphs that the sale of the gates during the approaching local races realised £105.

FOOTBALL.

Sydney v. East Sydney.—On Saturday afternoon the above clubs met on Moore Park for the second time this season, in the presence of about 1000 spectators. The afternoon turned out very unfavourably for good play, a strong north-westerly blowing, and shortly before starting a steady rain set in, which marred the good play expected from both sides. Owing to the dilatoriness of the Sydney team, play did not commence till half-past 3, a fault which should be rectified in the future, especially by the leading clubs of the association. The game during the first half proved very interesting and amusing, the slipperiness of the ground and ball rendering several players hors de combat. The ball was kept moving from goal to goal with considerable velocity, and with the exception of the goal scored by the Sydney captain, neither side had any advantage, although the Sydneys had a good wind behind them. East Sydney played in a remarkable style, their playing together outstripping their opponents. In consequence of the rain the two teams merely changed sides, and played on without an interval, and the East Sydney at once made a determined attack on the Sydney quarter, and so often did they try for the goal that it became apparent that Sydney would have to defend her citadel. The wind went down to a perfect calm, and the rain still coming down rendered the ball almost unfit for goal kicking. Sydney could not get the ball away, and only three times during the second half did they manage to get it beyond half way, once resulting in a behind, the only one scored by them in that half of the game. The East Sydney team were now working might and main, and from their efforts they placed 11 behinds to the credit of the red, white, and blue. The Sydney team appeared to have got completely nonplussed, and were "never in it" during the second half—quite a surprise to the followers of the senior team. With the exception of the flukey goal kicked by Crisp, the East Sydney may fairly be said to have carried the honours of the match. Mr. Walker, captain of the Redferns, played with the East Sydney, and his display stamps him as an able exponent of the Association rules. On behalf of the Sydney team, Gliddon, Hedger, Crisp, Ballhausen L., Goer, and M'Keller did yeoman service for the blue and red; while for the East Sydney, Bailey, O'Neil, Dick, Gordon, Shepherd, Turner, and Fleming worked hard. The kicking of Walker for the East was the theme of admiration; one lusty kick of his (fully 60 yards) lodged one yard in front of the Sydney goal, but owing to the nature of the ground, the ball broke round the post, resulting in a behind. The game resulting—Sydney, one goal five behinds; East Sydney, 15 behinds. Mr. Fausett, late of the South Melbourne team, made a fair umpire. It is rumoured that a third match has been arranged between these two clubs on the 2nd September.

St. Philip's Church of England Grammar School v. Modern High School.—The first twenties of these two schools played a match on Friday, at Moore Park. The latter had the greatest weight, but under the Association rules this did not tell as much as it would have had the Rugby game been played. St. Philip's won the kick off, which was entrusted to Corkhill, who throughout played a good game, as also did Lloyd, Moxham, and Thomson. After a good afternoon's sport, the game resulted in a draw in favour of the St. Philip's team, the score being—St. Philip's Grammar School, three goals 10 behinds; Modern High, three goals four behinds.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphs the following matches as played on Saturday:—Carlton v. Geelong: Match played at the latter place resulted in a win for Geelong, who scored four goals and eight behinds. Melbourne v. Essendon: Match played on the East Melbourne ground, with the result that Essendon won by four goals and 11 behinds, to Melbourne's two goals and eight behinds. South Melbourne v. Hotham: Match played on South Melbourne ground, with the result that South Melbourne obtained six goals and eight behinds to Hotham's two goals and nine behinds.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that on Saturday, on the Adelaide Oval, a football match between Norwood and South Park resulted in five goals and 17 behinds to the former, and two behinds to the latter. On the Alberton Oval, on the same day, the North Adelaides kicked three behinds to the Ports three goals and 13 behinds.

SYDNEY BICYCLE CLUB.

The annual race meeting of the Sydney Bicycle Club was held on Saturday afternoon, at the Association Cricket Ground. The meeting caused much interest, not only in Sydney but throughout the colony, competitors from Parramatta and the suburbs being present and visitors interested in cycling travelling hither from far up country, one gentleman having performed the journey from Goulburn on his bicycle, or perhaps it would be more correct to say on it so far as the heavy and mountainous road would permit. From 1 o'clock till 3 in the afternoon the trams leaving the city for the sports were freighted with spectators, and great as the number assembled on the ground was, it would no doubt have been still greater had not the rain commenced to fall at about the latter-named hour. The grand stand, which had been decorated with looped lines of flags, was crowded in every inch of room, indeed so much so, that when the rain fell, and its shelter was sought by many on the lawn, they could not be accommodated even with standing room. The members' pavilion was also well filled, and the terrace on the opposite side of the oval was occupied by a large crowd, and but for the unfortunate change in the weather there is little doubt the gathering would have been one of the largest which ever assembled on the ground. As it was, quite 6000 persons must have witnessed the racing. His Excellency the Governor had been expected to be present, and a portion of the grand stand had been reserved for his use and that of his suite, but he did not attend the meeting. Many other persons of distinction, however, were present. The number of ladies must have been very great, and despite the little opportunity which winter costume affords for the display of a variety of colours in dress, still such good use was made of all it did give, that the grand stand looked a very bright bit in the picture. There was an excellent muster of bicyclists, whose trim uniforms and brightly burnished "cycles" added not a little to such of the elements of the picturesque as the drizzling rain of the afternoon did not entirely obliterate. The racing was, on the whole, good, the contest for the Ten-mile Championship causing a very close race between C. W. Bennett and E. C. Wood. Throughout the 10 miles these two competitors had been pressing each other, now the one taking the lead, and now the other, till at the last lap Wood led by a short distance. About three-fourths of the circle had been covered when Bennett put on a magnificent spurt, and, amid very heartily expressed cheers, passed his opponent and won the race. The Four-mile Open Handicap race was another very exciting struggle. E. C. Wood, G. W. Godwin, J. M. Power, and F. W. Sharp made the pace very rapid, and kept interchanging places throughout the distance, causing much excitement among the spectators. At the finish, Wood, despite the long run of 10 miles he had shortly before completed, came to the front with a rush, and won, full 30 yards ahead of Godwin, the second man. The slow race and the umbrella race filled in the fun of the meeting, and a couple of foot-races pleasantly varied the sport. A little disappointment was felt at Mr. H. R. Stokes, Melbourne B. C., not competing, but that gentleman had been declared disqualified in accordance with the rules under which the meeting was carried out. The races were strictly confined to amateurs, and it was alleged that at a bicycle meeting held in Melbourne Mr. Stokes—though it would appear under exceptional circumstances—contested in a race against professionals. It was determined he could not start in this race, and a letter and telegram to that effect, we are informed, were forwarded to him in Melbourne, but unfortunately he did not receive them before he left for Sydney. A little annoyance was expressed by some with regard to the scratch race for the One-mile Amateur Championship of New South Wales. The bell having been rung, a reasonable time was given for competitors to take up their positions at the starting post. One of the conditions of the race was that there should be "six starters or no race," and as that number did not come to the post, the starter declared it would not be a race. One of the competitors, A. Lee, said he could complete the number, and a minute or two afterwards returned saying there would be two more competitors who would make up the number required. However, the starter and other officers declared the conditions had not been fulfilled, as ample time had been given, and the competitors had failed to appear. This decision appears to be in full conformity to the regulations under which the meeting was held, but notwithstanding very considerable disappointment was felt by the public, the race having been looked forward to with much interest. There were happily no serious accidents, or, indeed, accidents of any kind, beyond the "fouling" of two of the competitors in the 10-mile race and their consequent "greasing." The meeting was to have concluded with a parade of bicyclists, but on account of the wet weather it was not held. The racing, when the wet ground is considered, was very good, the quickest mile done being in 3 minutes 14 seconds. The course for the bicycles round the green was roped off, as was also the straight course for the foot runners, each of the latter having, as is usual, a space so roped as to prevent him jostling against any other runner. Each of the competitors in the bicycle races wore upon his left arm a white badge bearing a number printed in black, and corresponding to a number opposite the name of each in the programme. This proved a convenience to the judges and those not far distant from the competitors, but the numbers were scarcely if at all distinguishable at the grand stand. For purposes of use, though certainly not of ornament, a larger badge, with a proportionately-sized number upon the back of each rider, would better meet the case. The races were started fairly well up to time, and the arrangements in connection with them were well carried out by the officers. During the afternoon the City Band performed in the grand stand the following programme of music:—March, "Milano" (Giorza); overture, "Othello" (Rossini); selection, "I Puritani" (Bellini); mazurka, "Pour Prendre Congé" (Wallerstein); waltz, "Wiener Tonfarben" (Fahrback); selection, "The Wanderer," (Schubert); quadrille, "Wedding" (Strauss); galop, "Skating Rink" (Suschwitz). The full strength of the band was present, and, under the skilled conductor, Mr. Sebastian Hodge, the selections were rendered so excellently well as to make this portion of the afternoon's pleasure one of the most important and most enjoyable.

The following is a description of the racing, all races being run under English Bicycle Union racing rules.

One-mile Open Handicap Bicycle Race.—First heat: R. S. Lambton, Burwood B. C., 340 yards, 1; J. M. Ferguson, Sydney B. C., 150 yards, 2; A. H. M'Crea, Suburban B. C. 350 yards, 3; A. Hart, Rose Hill B. C., Parramatta, 145 yards; H. M. Shelley, Burwood B. C., 160 yards; G. T. Elliott, Balmain B. C., 265 yards; A. Siddins, 275 yards; A. James, Sydney B. C., 325 yards. Lambton passing M'Crea held the start to the finish, J. M. Ferguson taking second place, with M'Crea third, James, Elliott, and Siddins following in the order given. Hart retired early in the race. Time, 3 minutes 27½ seconds. Second Heat: W. H. Lester, Sydney B. C., 300 yards, 1; J. Copland, Sydney B. C. and Surrey B. C., England, 160 yards, 2; H. G. Lamb, Suburban B. C., 350 yards, 3; W. C. Woolcott, Suburban B. C., 150 yards; J. F. Rugg, Redfern B. C., 200 yards; W. O. Reynolds, unattached, 225 yards; E. H. Beattie, Sydney B. C., 250 yards; G. Corkhill, Balmain B.C., 260 yards; A. B. Brown, unattached, Maitland, 270 yards; T. G. Gibbons, Rose Hill B. C., Parramatta, 225 yards. In the second lap Lester passed Gibbons and took second place, and in the following lap overhauled Lamb, and kept the lead to the finish, with Copland (who had made his way gallantly through the other competitors) second, Lamb third. Time 3 minutes and 14 seconds. Final Heat: W. H. Lester, 1; R. S. Lambton, 2; J. M. Ferguson, 3; J. Copland, A. H. M'Crea, and H. J. Lamb. Lambton led for a distance, but struck against a post and fell, when Lester went to the front. Lambton, however, re-mounted, and held second place, with Ferguson third. Time, 3 minutes 20 seconds.

Scratch Race.—Ten Miles Amateur Championship of New South Wales.—The Gardiner Trophy, to be won twice in succession, or three times in all, presented by Mr. R. G. Vallack, on behalf of Mr. Wm. Gardiner, of the firm of Wm. Gardiner and Co., London and Sydney. Gold medal for first place, and silver medal for second place, presented by Mr. G. E. Crane, president:—C. W. Bennett, Wanderers' B. C. and Speedwell B. C., England, 1; E. C. Wood, Sydney B. C., 2; J. M. Power, Suburban B. C.; G. W. Godwin, Sydney B. C.; H. M. Shelley, Burwood B. C.; F. W. Sharp, Sydney B. C. After the first few laps the order was Wood, Bennett, and Godwin, the two latter being close together. Shelley retired, and on the sixth lap Godwin fell, and Moyse, who was close upon him, was also brought down; the two men remounted, but Godwin discontinued racing shortly afterwards. Moyse kept on the course for a few laps more, but then he also left it. The first mile was completed in 3 minutes 45 seconds, Wood still leading, with Bennett second. The same position was kept through the third and fourth miles; but at the finish of the 20th lap Bennett spurted and took the lead. At the 24th lap, Wood came abreast of him, and again went to the front, and kept it till the 28th lap, when Bennett again passed him; but Wood soon after regained his old position and kept it to the last round. When coming past the grand stand, and but a short distance from the winning post, Bennett made a splendid spurt, and passing his opponent, secured first place. Time, 38 minutes 2 seconds. Both men on entering the pavilion were loudly cheered.

100 Yards Scratch Foot Race.—P. James, 1; F. G. Russell, S. A. A. C., 2; D. Viles, E. S. A. A. C., F. W. Baylis, E. S. A. A. C., W. Colbran, J. Atkinson, P. C. Fairland, H. H. A. A. C., E. A. Grainger, E. S. A. A. C., G. Stephen, S. A. A. C. The men were sent off to a good start, and a close struggle was made between James and Russell for first place. Time, 11 seconds.

100 Yards Scratch Slow Race (last man to win).—E. L. Samuel, Kensington B. C., 1; A. W. Crane, Sydney B. C., and Cyclist Touring Club, England, 2; W. E. George, Sydney B. C., 3; A. B. Wood, Sydney B. C.; R. S. Lambton, Burwood B. C.; J. F. Valkenburg, Sydney B. C.; C. W. Bennett, Wanderers B. C. and Speedwell B. C., England; J. M. Ferguson, Sydney B. C.; J. M'Donald, Balmain B. C.; H. G. Lamb, Suburban B. C.; E. L. Samuel, Kensington B. C.; W. T. Cunningham, Cyclist Touring Club. This race caused much amusement. At the outset several of the competitors fell, and of course were then out of the race. Samuel managed his bicycle very skilfully, working it along in a zigzag in such a manner as to keep it upright at the least possible degree of speed.

Two Miles Open Handicap Bicycle Race.—E. C. Wood, Sydney B. C., 125 yards, 1; J. Copland, Sydney B. C., 250 yards, 2; J. M. Power, Suburban B. C., 150 yards, 3; G. W. Godwin, Sydney B. C., 200 yards; A. W. Crane, Sydney B. C., 125 yards; W. J. Paterson, Sydney B. C., 140 yards; W. C. Woolcott, Suburban B. C., 200 yards; S. E. Hewett, 275 yards. Copland was the first to pass Hewett, and Wood came into fourth place, and soon after gave the "go-by" to Hewett, and pressed Power, who had previously taken second place, and eventually passed him. In the last lap when half of it had been travelled Wood put on a spurt, collared Copland, who had held the lead for the greater portion of the distance, and took first place. Time, 7 minutes 6 seconds.

One Mile Open Handicap Tricycle Race.—J. Copland, Sydney B. C. and Surrey B. C., England, 200 yards, 1; C. E. George, Sydney B. C., 250 yards, 2; T. Turner, Sydney B. C., 300 yards, 3; C. W. Bennett, Wanderers B. C., scratch; T. Mulholland, 250 yards; J. Prior, Redfern B. C., 275 yards. After the first lap Copland, who was upon a splendid tricycle far superior apparently to any of the others used, came through his opponents and drew upon George, who had been leading, and passing him, won the race with comparative ease. Time, 4 minutes 10½ seconds. A protest was entered by George that Copland had crossed him.

Four Miles Open Handicap Bicycle Race.—Three prizes. E. C. Wood, Sydney B. C., 150 yards, 1; G. W. Godwin, Sydney B. C., 200 yards, 2; J. M. Power, Suburban B. C., scratch, 3; F. W. Sharp, Sydney B. C., 300 yards; C. W. Bennett, Wanderers B. C., scratch. In the third lap the order was Sharp, Godwin, Power, and Wood. In the eighth lap Power went up and passed Sharp with Wood third and Godwin fourth, and in the following lap Wood went into second place, and next lap took the premier position, Godwin having come up into second place, with Sharp third. In the twelfth lap Sharp made a spurt and again went to the front, but Godwin soon after collared him, and was followed by Wood. In the final lap Wood went to the front and Godwin pushed him for the victory, but Wood was too good, and putting on splendid pace came in a victor by about 30 yards. Time, 15 minutes 30 seconds.

440 Yards Open Handicap Foot Race.—J. Atkinson, 20 yards, 1; H. S. Dickson, 25 yards, 2; F. W. Baylis, E. S. A. A. C., 8 yards, 3; A. W. Gilder, E. S. A. A. C., 16 yards; A. S. Machin, 16 yards; W. Colbran, 16 yards; F. J. Pears, S. A. A. C., 20 yards; F. P. Prowse, E. S. A. A. C., 20 yards; A. James, S. B. C., 20 yards; J. Campbell, E. S. A. A. C., 30 yards; A. Henry, N. C. A. A. C., 20 yards. This was a well-contested race, J. Atkinson securing first place, after a stiff struggle. Time, 55½ seconds.

Half-mile Open Handicap Umbrella Bicycle Race.—A. Edwards, Sydney B. C., scratch, 1; G. E. Timewell, Suburban B. C., penalised 5 seconds, 2; J. Copland, Sydney B. C., penalised 15 seconds, 3; J. F. Valkenburg, Sydney B. C., penalised 15 seconds; W. J. Paterson, Sydney B. C., penalised 15 seconds; A. B. Wood, Sydney B. C., penalised 10 seconds. In this race the competitors had to start with umbrellas shut and immediately afterwards they had to open them and hold them up till the conclusion of the race, and on no pretence whatever were the handles of the bicycles to be touched. The race, which caused great amusement, fell a victory to A. Edwards.

This concluded the racing.

COURSING.

An important sale of greyhounds will take place to-morrow at Fennelly's Bazaar, at half-past 1 o'clock, when Mr. Garling will dispose of the kennel of the late Mr. G. Lee Lord. Among the lot to be submitted are ten running dogs fit to go to slips at the Woodstock meeting on Wednesday. Of those Lachlan, a very promising puppy, who ran up to Lancastrian in the Derby at the Bowral meeting, should command some eager competition, as he then displayed all the qualities required in a good greyhound. There are also three untried puppies by Larras Lake from Sea Wave, which are sure to create some spirited bidding. Three brood bitches of high lineage are also in the catalogue; and some splendidly bred puppies by the imported dog, Dependon-Me.

BOWLING.

A junior handicap match, in connection with the City Bowling Club, was played during the past month, on the Cook Park bowling green. The prizes competed for this season were liberal, viz.—First prize, won by Mr. Sippel, trophy, value £6; second prize, won by Mr. Knight, trophy, value £5; third prize, won by Mr. Andrew, trophy, value £3; fourth prize, won by Mr. Dymock, trophy, value £2. Such prizes as these should offer strong inducements to gentlemen to join a bowling club, apart from the natural attractiveness of the game, and the healthful exercise it affords. The general handicap match (for all the members of the club) is now open, and will be played during this month. There will be a number of valuable prizes, for which keen competition is expected. The match for the champion medal of the Bowling Association of New South Wales is also to be played off during the month of September. First prize, £6 6s. (champion medal), and a second prize, trophy valued at £4 4s. for the runner-up.

AQUATICS.

On Saturday afternoon a handicap race in light skiffs took place for a trophy presented by Mr. Monk, who takes a great interest in rowing contests, and presented this prize for the encouragement of light skiff racing, which has declined lately, rowing men preferring to pull in outriggers. There were nine entries for the event which the committee decided should be rowed in heats. Four started in the first, and five in the second heat, three men in each heat being eligible to row in the final. Two steamers which were crowded followed, the Agenoria conveying the umpire, committee, and press. The course was from a boat moored off the shore in Double Bay, round Shark Island, and back to the starting point. The events were well contested, and the final heat resulted in A. Ireland (40lb.), A. Chamberlain (35lb.), and W. Stannard (15lb.), passing the flagboat in the order named. The winner (A. Ireland) is quite a lad, and gives promise of taking a position amongst our leading scullers. The prizes will be handed over to the winners to-morrow.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that a footrace took place on the Adelaide oval on Saturday for a trophy and the championship of the colony, between Shephard and Allister. It resulted in the former winning easily.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

Even if the "Woman of the People" does not possess the powerful moral influence claimed for it—and there is some evidence that it does—there can be no doubt that the drama has proved a draw, and every succeeding representation brings larger houses. On Saturday night the Gaiety Theatre was simply crammed in every part, and a number of persons were content to take standing room in the passage leading to the stalls. The usual Saturday night's audience assembled in the gallery, but they were remarkably subdued, a fact which may have been attributable to the influence of the "Woman of the People" (Miss Louise Beaudet), the vivid pourtrayal of whose sufferings was enough to move the stoniest heart, and affect to tears the most hardened patron of the "gods." The drama went splendidly, and will no doubt be well patronised during the present week. The Rev. C. F. Garnsey has addressed the following letter to the editor of the Herald in reference to the drama:—"Sir,—For many years past I have abstained from the theatre from the feeling that the ordinary plays presented to the public missed their object as expressed by our great dramatist—the immortal Shakspeare—whose end, both at the first and now, was and is to hold as 'twere the mirror up to Nature, to show virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time, its form and pressure. Rather it seemed to me that the aim and intention of too many of the writers for the stage was to pander to unwholesome tastes and feelings, and to present scenes at once gross, sensational, and corrupt. Having had the opportunity of witnessing the performance of 'A Woman of the People,' I have no hesitation whatever in expressing my conviction that it achieved, in a very marked manner, the desired object I have indicated, and must influence many who are able to see it for good. It is a true picture of life, powerfully exciting the good impulses which the Creator has implanted in our breasts, and holding up to scorn and detestation that well-known character in the world, 'the jolly good fellow,' who, in his own absence of self-restraint, becomes the ruin of others, and the blight of many homes. It is free from coarseness and vulgarity, while it points most strongly to the one moral, the evil of over-indulgence in drink.—Yours, &c., Chas. F. Garnsey, Christ Church, Sydney, July 31."

THE OPERA HOUSE.

"Les Manteaux Noirs" was very well patronised on Saturday evening, and it is probable that a new set of black cloaks will be required before the present popularity of the opera diminishes. So much has already been said about the opera that it is hard to find anything new to say. Every act possesses some special feature which ensures its success, and the interest and amusement do not flag for one moment.

THE THEATRE ROYAL.

There was a fine house at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night, and the "Grasshopper" was received with cordial applause throughout. Miss Jennie Lee is of course the centre of interest, but she is effectively supported by the rest of the company, and no telling point in the drama is missed. Miss Lee's songs, "The Squire and Maria," and "His Heart was true to Poll," are alone worth hearing, and on Saturday evening they were received with much laughter and applause.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Court Minstrels have no cause to complain of the patronage accorded to them by the public during the week, and on Saturday night there was a good attendance at the Academy of Music.

MASONIC HALL.

Professor Simon's entertainment at the above place of amusement was fairly well attended on Saturday evening. There was a liberal distribution of gifts, and among the recipients were the most amiable gentlemen examined and the gentlemen presenting most marked proofs of irritability.

THE KENNEDY FAMILY.

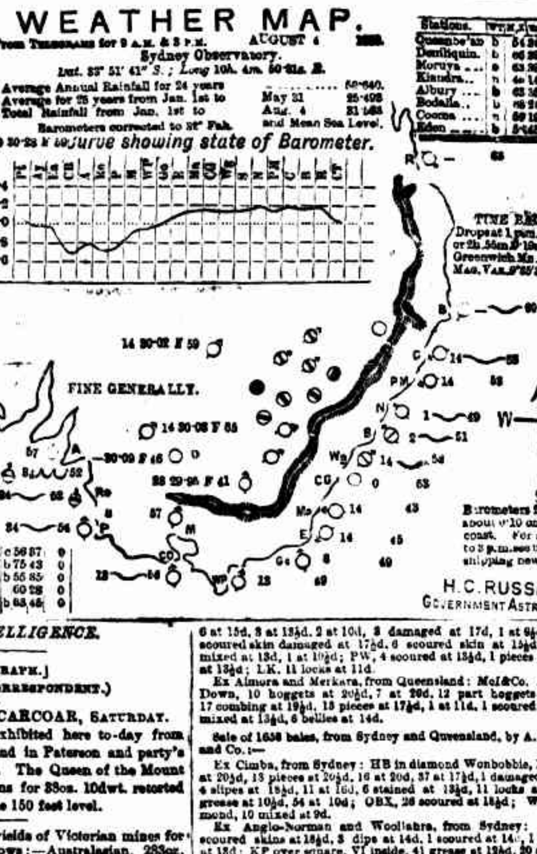

The Kennedy Family, at the Protestant Hall, continue to draw large audiences. On Saturday evening the hall was filled, and the clever family won golden opinions from their hearers. A selection had been made from the songs sung during the week, and thus an excellent programme was made up. The Misses Kennedy were encored for their pianoforte performances, and, with Mr. R. Kennedy and the very genial head of the family, furnished a treat in the way of Scotch music that must have gladdened the hearts of very many of their auditors. During the evening Mr. Kennedy told several anecdotes, and also recited "Tam O'Shanter," the tale of whose midnight ride was listened to with the greatest interest and amusement. To-night the programme will be made up of a special selection of Gaelic airs, and on Tuesday will be given "Anither Nicht wi' Burns."

Our correspondent at Melbourne telegraphs that there was a crowded house at the Opera House in that city on Saturday evening to witness "Carmen," with which Signor Verdi's opera company opened their season. Miss Marsian Simonsen appeared in the title rôle. At the Theatre Royal Pettitt's "Taken from Life" replaced "Pluck." At the Princess' "Pinafore" was succeeded by "La Fille de Tambour Major," with Mr. John Wallace in the part of Bambini. There was a large audience at the Bijou, where the Polks repeated "An Arabian Night."

Our Brisbane correspondent telegraphs that Holloway's company played "Lights o' London" for the last time on Saturday night to a full house. This piece has been very successful, having had a run of three weeks, which is the longest ever known in Brisbane.

Dr. De Jongh's Light-brown Cod Liver Oil.—"With strumous and emaciated subjects, and where the general health is impaired," observes Sir Henry Marsh, Bart., M.D., Physician to the Queen in Ireland, "the reviving and reanimating effects of a regular daily course of this animal oil are highly satisfactory. Its favourable action on the system is renovating; it checks progressive emaciation, restores the yielding health, rebuilds, as it were, the tottering frame, and brings about a most remarkable and salutary change in all the vital functions." Sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, pints, and quarts, by all chemists. Sole Consignees, Ansar, Harford, and Co., 77, Strand, London. Agents at Sydney, Elliott Brothers.—[Advt.]

A CALL AT CASAMICCIOLA.

By James Hingston.

It is early on a fine May morning that I am standing at the door of the Hotel D'Etrangers, at Naples, awaiting the coming of my American friend, who has been a travelling companion for six months past. We have gone through India, Syria, and Palestine together, and have now been for more than a fortnight seeing the sights of Naples and the greater sights of its famous and classical surroundings. In that way we have visited Cumae and Baiae, been to Herculaneum and Pompeii, up and down Vesuvius, and out to Sorrento and Paestum. Our guide has proved hitherto a very good one, and worthy of the character with which he came endorsed to us from the British consul.

"What is to-day's programme?" we ask of him, my friend having now arrived. "We have to see the islands. We will take Procida and Ischia to-day, because they lie together. Capri is in the other direction, and we will go there to-morrow." The conveyance has been brought with him, so that we have but to take our seats and are driven off round the Chiajia drive and down that Posilipo-road, which in the evening will be crowded with the fashionables of Naples, to whom it is as the Rotten Row of Hyde Park or the Maidann of Calcutta as a popular resort. We pass along here rapidly in the deserted state in which the Chiajia is now seen, holding up our heads only to look at the mount on which stands Virgil's tomb on the one side, and at the opening-out panorama of the splendid bay on the other.

The road winding up the side of the bay is one on which the finest of villas have been built for miles of the course we now take. The road is upwards all the way on a gradual rise to Puteoli, or Puzziola, as it is oftener written. We have been something over an hour in getting here, where our guide proposes that we shall change our conveyance for that of a boat. The drive would extend onwards to the end of the peninsula, terminating in Mount Procida; but there is something by the way that can be more advantageously seen from the water.

The boat excursion takes us on to the island of Procida, a pretty little spot, distant not three miles from the end of the mainland. Steamers starting from Naples call here daily for passengers, whom they take on to Ischia and Casamicciola. It is one of these boats that will bring us back from the latter place, or from Ischia, in the evening. By our early start and present form of conveyance we get the advantage of seeing the island in a full day's time there spent.

Procida Island is not above three miles in length and of a smaller and varying width. Its formation, like that of Ischia, its near neighbour, is of pumice stone and lava, deposited in the bay in ages past. Such deposits were made by that Mount St. Nicholas, or Mount Epomeo, or more anciently, Mount Epopeus, which as a volcano is so visible on the shore of Ischia. From the little distance of one island from the other the idea prevails that Procida and Ischia were once united. Procida, for its small size, is well populated. Its labouring population are mainly fishermen and boat-builders, and dockyards seem to occupy most of its coast line. Its ancient castle, of a picturesque appearance, is now used as a convict prison, from which, by the way, the finest view on the island is to be had. Some of the fishermen's daughters would delay us to see them dance the tarantella. We are advised by Nicholo, our guide, to stay to see this, the national dance of Italy. He takes us accordingly to the garden of a restaurant, where we get for 6d. a bottle of better wine than we could get out of Italy for 5s., and for four other sixpences see finer dancing by shoeless women than I ever saw on any stage. But to the children of Italy, singing and dancing come as naturally as mother's milk. They talk in tune and move always as if to music.

Crossing Procida, we reach the little bay of Chiaiolella, where our boat awaits us. In this we embark and passing the islet of Vivara are taken across some three miles of water and landed upon the island of Ischia and at its chief town of the same name. We have now the full width of the magnificent bay between this island and the distant shore on which we can see Vesuvius. Of that volcano we shall have a better view when we mount the sides of the one that occupies so central and permanent position on this island of Ischia, that Mount Epomeo, of which mention has been made.

Ischia is a noble island, in shape a broken-edged circle, and in size 25 square miles. It is of a hilly character as to the surface, its volcano occupying its highest ground, and being itself some 2500 feet in height. Around its pretty shores are many watering places which might be called either town or village. Ischia, its chief town, faces towards the bay and Naples. Casamicciola, Lacco, and Forio—three of its other principal places of resort—are on the opposite or western shore. The "season" for the island has scarcely begun in this month of May, but in June, July, and August visitors crowd hither in plenty, not only for the coolness of a watering-place, but for the curative character of the waters.

This island of Ischia has kept its name from the beginning of the Christian era. It was more anciently known as Pytheiuse and Amaria. The historian Pliny mentions it as having a fame for pottery manufacture, a trade which one is not surprised, in slow moving Italy, to find still carried on here. Fishermen are here as plentifully seen as at Procida, but the cultivators of the land make here also a prominent show. Grain of many kinds, olives, and figs are cultivated, but the vine is king of such produce. A wine, second only to that of Lacryma Christi in fame, is made from grapes grown here. The volcanic soil favours such result as that of the sides of Vesuvius do the production of its rival. The Lacryma is, however, a red wine, while this product of Ischia is of the white kind.

The earliest records of Ischia tell us of its evacuation some 500 years B.C. on account of the earthquakes. A like terror to that now caused in this island had then happened. Two thousand three hundred years are nothing in geological time, so that we may conclude that the recent earthquake is now but premonitory of an eruption of Mount Epomeo, which became active soon after the earthquake then felt. It is indeed supposed by the students of such phenomena that the earthquakes felt in the neighbourhood of volcanoes are but the overture—the preliminary warning of the volcanic eruption that will soon follow.

Epomeo, the mountain from which this eruption may probably now be looked for, is a volcano of more ancient fame than is Vesuvius. Its outbreaks in olden time were many, and around its sides numerous cones and extinct craters may be counted that are each supposed to have made eruptions in their time. History records other outbreaks of this volcano about a century before our era, as likewise three following times during the Roman Empire. The latest recorded eruption that we hear told of was in the year 1302. So long a period as 580 years of quietness probably justified the large population of Ischia that is now seen there. It did so at least up to 1881. That time is since my visit, but I read that in March of that year the island was visited with two shocks of an earthquake. The effects of them were felt, as in the present case, most at Casamicciola, where half the town was destroyed, and some 130 people were killed, and as many more injured. Such terrors, however, seem to have been soon forgotten, and to have frightened few from further living on the scene of them.

The town of Ischia contained at the time of our visit some 7000 inhabitants, and Casamicciola nearly as many. There was little to interest one in the former place, except the sight of a castle standing like that of Chillon, in the water, and reached by a rocky roadway from the land. The very port of Ischia is a basin formed by the crater of an extinct volcano, which, if it ever again breaks out, will deluge the little town in lava and ashes in a very short time. There being nothing to detain one here we take a car to the other side of the island. The drive is to Casamicciola, and occupies upwards of an hour over a pretty and good road cut out of the lava, left by the last eruption of the volcano which towers alongside of us on this drive.

Casamicciola stands on high ground, and has the best site for a settlement to be found in the island. It is situated at about an equal distance from the shore, and from the foot of the mountain on high ground, from which splendid views are obtainable on all sides. The hotels here are many and good, as also are the boarding houses, and two or three hydropathic establishments. The place obtained its fame from baths of sulphurous water that are here found as hot as they are at Ohinemutu in New Zealand's north island. It is to these baths, and to the drinking of the medicinal waters found in colder springs, that Casimicciola owes its existence. So famous has it been as a spa, that in the 17th century some charitably disposed noble endowed a hospital here for poorer patients. This Monte Misericordia, as it is called, receives its contributions from the invalids of the hospital on the mainland. In the months of June, July, and August this watering place is always crowded. As the disaster of which we now hear has occurred at the end of July, it may be concluded for such reason above to have been more terrible in its results than that of March, 1881, when comparatively few visitors would be in Casimicciola.

The main ailment for which these waters are sought are for rheumatic affections—the most prevalent of humanity's troubles. There are doctors of note here resident who accommodate rich patients in their houses at all times, and the whole place may be looked upon as a sanatorium. For such purpose nothing could be more pleasantly situated. Pretty drives are all around. We are run out on one side in a quarter of an hour to Lacco, on the sea shore. This we find to be a fishing village, and a very warm place so far as the land upon which it stands is concerned. Our guide, Nicolo, points to various spots in which we feel the heat of the earth to be unpleasantly great. This heated state of things extends to the sands on the beach, beneath the surface of which the warmth is felt quite as perceptibly as further inland. The whole of the surroundings of Casamicciola are so decidedly volcanic that though Epomeo has been quiet so long the ground all around it is voted by us visitors as decidedly dangerous.

We drive out on the other side of Casamicciola to Forio—a more fashionable resort for invalids. Here are, in the season, quite as many, or more, visitors, and here probably the earthquake has been felt, as also at Lacco, to an extent that we shall yet hear more of. Forio is but 20 minutes' drive from Casamicciola, and the destruction of the one place cannot have occurred without injury to the other. Forio has distinct springs and baths of its own, and its doctors claim for them other and, of course, better qualities than what can be found elsewhere.

After visits to Lacco and Casamicciola there remained but the ascent of Epomeo before our return from the island. This ascent is, unlike that of Vesuvius, done upon donkeys. The mount is accessible from all sides, but we take that which lies nearest to Forio. The views from the various points of this ascent of 2500 feet were very grand indeed—the day being a particularly clear one. Arrived at the summit we look upon the crater that has been so long silent, and upon all the surroundings to which this central mountain stands as king. Our way then lies down that other side that will take us back, by another road, to Ischia, calling at an old monastery by the way. The bread and wine that we get there taste as most particularly palatable; but there was little doubt that the exercise had in this fine day's outing went much towards getting a better appetite than usual. Arrived at Ischia, we are in time for the 6 o'clock boat thence to Naples, where we arrive in a little over an hour and a half's trip across the bay.

WHAT the NIHILISTS ARE GOING TO DO.

The following is the concluding portion of the letter of the Russian Nihilist "Stepniak," the beginning of which appeared in our columns on Friday, August 3, copied from the Pall Mall Gazette:—

"The growth of open opposition of which these are instances was evidently only a weak reflection of that which was seething underneath. In the meantime another and smaller but more vehement current came to reinforce vigorously the preceding one. It had its origin in the army. The purely Socialistic movement of 1873-6 had left this most important class indifferent. It is true that, as it was very strong, it swept along with it some officers like Sciscko, Rogareff, and others, but they were isolated cases. And these few hastened to abandon the service in order to become apostles of the new doctrine, as in these times one could not think of anything else. Matters stood thus up to 1877, when the war with Turkey broke out. The influence of that war was decisive, first because it showed everybody the blemishes of that hideous Colossus with feet of clay, Russia; and, secondly, because it brought the officers of our army encamped beyond the frontier into contact with a country of liberal institutions, and gave them full liberty to satisfy their curiosity by reading prohibited books coming from Geneva and London, which were exhibited in the windows of all booksellers. And it should be noted that the books most popular with them were not the purely Socialistic works, but those which demanded above all political liberties, a Constitution, the calling of a national assembly, &c. The officers were evidently neither so young nor so inflammable as the youth of the universities, who form the great mass of the readers of prohibited books, and they felt already at that time what the revolutionary party recognised three years later—namely, the impossibility of taking a single step towards the social vindication of the people before having acquired political liberty. This possibly explains a fact which greatly saddened us revolutionaries at the time. At first the war seemed not to have produced in the army any such notable change as we expected. The officers showed themselves just as unwilling as ever to make common cause with the revolutionaries of that time—the advocates of agrarian Socialism. But events of such importance do not happen without leaving their traces, and the influence of that war remained latent, awaiting its opportunity to show itself. In fact, in proportion as the political element developed itself in the programmes of the Socialists, the adhesions among the officers increased, and the first military 'circles' among the garrison of St. Petersburg and the sailors of Kronstadt were founded even during the reign of Alexander II., as was seen afterwards in the trial of Sukanoff.

"After the accession of Alexander III., this germ developed into a great movement. With his childish cowardice he rendered himself contemptible to the soldiery, who think personal courage is the first of human qualities, and wounded their honour most deeply by his distrust of them. The officers of the Guard before entering the palace were searched by the police like thieves, for fear that they should have a weapon or a bomb concealed about them. The Emperor did not even stick at unworthy subterfuges to deceive his 'faithful children,' as the guard are called, and to escape their manifestations of loyalty. One day, after the great review of May, while all the officers were awaiting at the gate of the palace the departure of their Czar, in order to salute him, he left the palace secretly by another gate in another carriage, and the officers, after an hour of idle waiting, were informed by a chamberlain that his Majesty was already many miles away. It is easy to understand the resentment which such incidents must have produced. The general discontent felt everywhere, and affection for a country oppressed by a stupid, greedy, ignorant Camarilla, combined themselves with the sentiment of disgust which this shameful Government excited, and goaded the officers to ally themselves in great numbers with the revolutionary party, which fascinated them by its splendid courage, and was the only one which for so many years courageously kept the field against autocracy.

"We will make no indiscreet revelations. We will only say that the revolutionary organisation in the army, composed exclusively of officers, is specially widespread in the capitals of provinces, with ramifications in every important country town. It is composed exclusively of officers of all ranks, including the commanders of numerous independent bodies. Private soldiers do not belong to it, but every officer seeks to have among his privates men in sympathy with the revolutionary ideas. The members of the organisation are completely independent as regards their internal discipline, but are collectively, as well as individually, bound by a solemn oath to appear at the command of the Executive Committee at the time and place agreed upon for the revolutionary work, together with as many soldiers as they can induce to follow them. The numerous political trials of late days and the numerous arrests in various regiments of the army have drawn the attention of the Government and the public to the evident progress of the revolutionary idea among the military. It is the participation of this new element which has determined the important change which we indicated at the outset. With the powerful reinforcement which the adhesions on the part of the army give and with the universal discontent prevailing, it would be a poor thing to confine oneself to acts of terrorism, and this is why we see their place being gradually taken by the idea of insurrection pure and simple. We cannot dwell upon the change for want of space. We will only say that at the present moment this idea is incontestably the only prevalent one.

"The last programme of the Executive Committee accordingly defines the immediate aim of the party to be a political insurrection, with the object of transferring the power to the people (cap. III. s. 1. The Narodnaia Volia of the 5th February, 1882, is still more explicit. 'Now,' it says, 'our immediate object is the reorganisation of a conspiracy for upsetting the existing order of things. . . At this moment the work of the party is principally directed to binding together all the elements of opposition into one central body, capable of taking the initiative in revolt at the opportune moment.' In a document called 'The Preliminary Work of the Party,' lately published in the calendar of the Narodnaia Volia, we see unfolded a detailed instruction about the operations necessary to that end.

"In view of this general tendency single acts of terrorism lose all importance, and become as it were useless waste of force, like the skirmishes preceding a pitched battle. They are not indeed excluded, but they remain accidental or secondary acts. An attempt on the life of the Emperor might be made as the beginning of an insurrectionary movement or of a bold coup d'état, but by itself it is no longer of any importance.

"Here is the secret of the almost absolute silence of the party for the last two years. Is it credible that they should break that silence precisely at the time of the festivities of the coronation? that the revolutionists should make their first attempt at insurrection just when their enemy is most on the alert? To put the question is to answer it. This is why we believe that during the sojourn of the Imperial family at Moscow nothing will happen, and that they will return safely to St. Petersburg."

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

A public meeting for the advocacy of local self-government was held on Saturday evening, at the Temperance Hall. There was a very limited attendance. Mr. T. Rowe presided, and among those on the platform were Messrs. Inglis, Parrott, Ranken, J. C. Neild, E. W. O'Sullivan, Thompson, Gipps, Knapp, Bryden, and J. Plummer.

The Chairman having briefly opened the proceedings,

Mr. Inglis moved,—"That, in view of the increasing evils of centralisation, it is the opinion of this meeting that a broad and efficient system of local self-government should be established as early as possible throughout this colony." It had been said that local self-government in this colony needed no advocacy, but he maintained that at no period of this colony's history was the advocacy of local self-government more needed than at the present moment (Hear, hear.) In 1877, Sir Henry Parkes, in a speech to his constituents, alluded to the necessity for the adoption of a reformed system of local self-government. Other public writers and speakers had from time to time condemned the evil of the parish vestry system which existed in this colony, and urged the inauguration of a system which would relieve the Parliament of the country from devoting its attention to petty local matters and place the management of purely local affairs in the hands of local governing bodies. (Cheers.) The object of this meeting was to aid the development of some such scheme as that, and he was pleased to see so many public spirited men come forward to aid that movement, not from any desire to thrust themselves into popularity, or to serve any personal interests, but to serve the public good by relieving the national Parliament from the log-rolling and petty squabbling that at present impeded national legislation, and creating throughout the country self-reliant local governing bodies. (Cheers.)

Mr. T. S. Parrott seconded the resolution. After referring to the recorded experiences of self-government in ancient times, he said that although nominally we possessed local self-government in our municipal institutions, the actual fact was that the spirit of centralisation overshadowed and affected those bodies, and the result was that we had the form of local self-government without the substance. (Cheers.) In all the Australasian colonies the blessings of local self-government were enjoyed to a more or less degree. So far as the colony was concerned, he would quote a few figures for 1883 to show what our local self-government really meant. In connection with the Lands Department, the expenditure for the year was 478,178; for the Harbours and Rivers Department, £160,811; for the Colonial Architect's Department £243,311; and for the Roads and Bridges Department, no less than £689,607. Did that look like local self government? (Cheers.) Did any of the meeting ever really consider the enormous influence and power represented by this vast expenditure passing through a single central Department?

The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Neild moved—"That it is desirable that in any scheme of local self-government provision should be made for an extension of powers now possessed by municipal councils in regard to water supply, sewerage, and similar matters." It had been said that some useful result might have been anticipated from this movement if it were headed by men of large political influence. Was there a single great measure on the Statute Book of New South Wales that had been carried by men of large political influence until they had been whipped and spurred into action by men who belonged to the people but were not men of large political influence? (Cheers.) Local self-government was a very vague shadow in New South Wales, and Ministers of the Crown were selected, not so much for their capacity as advisers of the Crown, but for their capacity to manage a department or act as a kind of chief clerk over a large Government establishment. The institution of thoroughly self-reliant local councils, invested with genuine and not sham power, would tend to purify the public life of this colony. His idea was, in the first place, that road trusts should be abolished, and the roads placed under local control. All water reserves should be placed in the hands of locally elected authorities, and sewerage should be properly carried out. As far as the matter of water supply was concerned, Queensland was years ahead of us. Our pavements were a disgrace to our towns, and our fire brigade system, which should be locally regulated, was a farce. He did not advocate that all the districts should bear the cost of all their local requirements, but his proposal was that they should have their local rates subsidised by fixed endowment from the consolidated revenue. In 1880 the municipalities received an endowment of 10s. in the £; in 1881 they received 20s. in the £; in 1882 they received nothing; and in 1883 they would receive the odd sum of 15s. in the £. How could they expect local bodies to manage their affairs if they never knew from one year to another what their income would be. There should be fixed endowment. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Ranken moved,—"That, in the opinion of this meeting any scheme of local self-government should provide for the creation of shire councils or divisional boards, having control of all matters of local administration, and the execution of all local works." So far as local self-government was concerned, the young colony of Queensland was an example to this the mother colony. When that colony was separated from New South Wales, they had a system of government which was a counterpart of our own, but there was too much "new chum" blood among the Queenslanders to long tolerate a system so pregnant with corruption, and they adopted a Divisional Boards Act which had proved a splendid stride in legislative progress. He held that the decentralisation of the public Departments was equally as important as local self-government—(hear, hear)—and in that respect Queensland had also gone far ahead of this colony. It would be repeatedly said that this colony was too young for such local institutions as he had referred to, but Queensland had proved that a younger colony than New South Wales could successfully establish institutions of that kind, and they had proved of the greatest possible public benefit. If we wanted a good Land Bill in this colony we must have proper local self-government—(hear, hear)—and then we would get rid of this hateful system of centralisation. (Cheers.)

Mr. Plummer seconded the resolution. He felt convinced, from the communications he had received from various parts of the colony, that this movement would be a great success.

Mr. Thompson (formerly of Queensland) endorsed the remarks of Mr. Ranken in reference to the local self-government system of Queensland, in respect of which that colony was far ahead of New South Wales. He was strongly opposed to the iniquitous system of centralisation, and had not the slightest doubt that centralisation was the main cause of the failure of the land laws, for the simple reason that it was impossible to administer such a vast extent of country through a central office.

Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan heartily supported the resolution, and said that once this movement gathered strength they would find shoals of men of "large political influence" ready to become associated with it.

The resolution was agreed to without dissent.

The proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

In the report of the meeting of the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association a section was inadvertently omitted, causing the proceedings with regard to the report of the sub-committee on physiology and physiognomy to "run into" the proceedings with regard to "federal quarantine." In our report after the words "Dr. Hurst moved that the report be adopted, with the omission of the last three paragraphs," there should follow:—

Professor Stuart moved that the third paragraph from the last should be so amended as to make it clear that the report recommended that anatomy and physiology should be placed on the same level as French and German, so that, if a student desired, he might take those subjects instead of Greek or the higher mathematics—in fact, that they should be optional, as Greek, French, German, or the higher mathematics were at present.

Dr. Bedford seconded the amendment.

The report, as amended, was then agreed to.

The amended portion of the sub-committee's report will now read:—"Allow candidates for degrees to take up these subjects instead of Greek and the so-called higher mathematics, French, and German. For the clergy and for those who choose to adopt the profession of philology, Greek is undoubtedly necessary, and it is, without question, a wide and important field of culture, but it is not in ordinary cases an indispensable means of educational training."

Upon the motion of Sir Alfred Roberts, seconded by Dr. Quaife, it was resolved that the report should be forwarded to the Senate of the University.

The matter of "federal quarantine" was then entered upon.

Sir Alfred Roberts proposed the following resolution:—"1. That an efficient system of quarantine is essential to the health and prosperity of the colonies of Australasia. 2. That the geographical position of these colonies is highly favourable to the development of the best results of a fully and well-organised quarantine. 3. That such a system should be framed and conducted upon federal principles, combining efficiency, humanity, and hospitality. 4. That the central position of Sydney renders it desirable that the Government of New South Wales should initiate a conference of all the other Australian colonies to consider and frame a system founded upon the before-mentioned principles." He understood federal quarantine to mean—1. A system of quarantine which was designed, agreed upon, and carried out by the unanimous consent and control, and at the expense, of the Australasian colonies, including New Zealand. 2. The system to consist of—(a) general quarantine, to be carried out at the first port of entrée; (b) local quarantine, to be conducted at intermediate and ultimate ports. 3. The general quarantine depot to be so situated and organised as to ensure immunity from all danger of infection to the colony in which it was located.

Dr. Fortescue seconded the resolutions.

Dr. Ewan supported the resolutions. There was a common danger threatening these colonies, and the community was much indebted to the president for the action he had taken.

The resolutions were carried unanimously, and it was then resolved that these resolutions be transmitted to the Government.

A Fact.—The number of people who were about the streets on Saturday night shows pretty plainly that dull weather won't keep them at home when anything really good is about, and the crowds who flocked to Riley Brothers' 18th Semi-Annual Cost-price Sale, at Brickfield-hill and Oxford-street were well rewarded for doing so. It is being continued to-day and during the week, and we would advise our readers not to miss it.—[Advt.]

LOCOMOTIVE DRIVERS' AND FIREMENS' DINNER.

The annual dinner of the locomotive drivers and firemen employed upon the railways of New South Wales was held under the auspices of the Locomotive Drivers and Firemens' Association at the Town Hall, Redfern, on Saturday evening, and proved a great success. An excellent dinner—provided by Mr. John Cripps, of Pitt-street—was partaken of by about 130 gentlemen. The chair was occupied by Mr. E. Harrison, one of the senior drivers, and amongst the others who sat at the upper end of the tables were Messrs. John Sutherland and W. T. Poole, Ms.L.A.; William Scott, chief locomotive engineer; Thomas Middleton, locomotive overseer; William Privett, acting-locomotive foreman; John Tipping, district inspector for Penrith and Bathurst; — Howe, tramway locomotive department; and R. Sheridan, chief clerk locomotive engineer's office. Hermann's string band performed an excellent selection of music. A very long programme of toasts, songs, recitations, &c., was carried out in a spirited manner. In the earlier part of the evening Mr. D. Moore (secretary of the association) gave an address on the origin and progress of the association. He said that for many years they had laboured under the disadvantage of having no social ties nor moral influence over one another in their large body of enginemen and firemen. Seeing the great increase every year to their numbers, and knowing that any act of indiscretion on the part of one of their number would to a very great extent bring discredit upon them as a body, and would materially reduce the confidence of the travelling public, now so unreservedly placed in them, they, after due consideration, determined to form themselves into an association, under which the men would be divided into branches or sections, each branch having officers of their own. It was thought that such an association would to a very great extent have a moral influence with regard to all the enginemen and firemen. Then, knowing as they so well did from everyday life the difficulties, dangers, and responsibilities of their calling—some of which were entirely beyond their control—they were further actuated by a desire to assist as far as possible a brother workman in misfortune, provided always that the misfortune was not brought about by his own wilfulness or culpable neglect. As yet the association was in its infancy, being only seven months old, but during those seven months it had made good progress. Seven branches had been established, consisting of 450 members, and having in the bank the sum of £130 standing to their credit. At a later period of the evening Mr. H. Bland said he had been called upon to propose a toast which he considered to be one of the most important toasts they had been asked to do honour to that evening. He had to ask them to drink in bumpers "Success to the Railways of New South Wales." He considered there was no body of men who ought to drink that toast with greater enthusiasm than the enginemen and firemen, because not only did their individual success depend upon the success of the railways upon which they were employed, but he considered it was an honour to be employed upon a railway which was a successful one. He said an honour, because he maintained that the enginemen and firemen had it in their power to in no small degree contribute to the success of a railway upon which they were employed, and the greater the success the greater the honour to them. Well, he said—and he did not think anyone could condradict him—that our railways were an unqualified success, and he would also say—and he did not think he would be contradicted in that respect—that the enginemen and firemen contributed largely towards that success. If they compared the number of casualties upon those railways with the number of casualties upon railways in other parts of the world, they would find such comparison greatly in favour of the New South Wales railways. Well, then, he had to say that they, as a body, and the public at large, had the good fortune to have a gentleman at the head of the Railway Department who, by his undoubted ability and good generalship, had made their railways what they were—the model railways of the Australian colonies. (Great applause.) They owed that gentleman a debt of gratitude, and they ought, not merely as a sense of duty, but as a sense of gratitude, to give him all the assistance that lay in their power by strict obedience of the instructions of the officers the Commissioner had placed over them. They ought to strain every nerve to prove to the Commissioner that they were grateful, and they ought to show by their exertions that it was their wish and their intention that their railways should be not only the model railways of Australia but second to none in the whole world. (Great applause.) The toast having been drunk with much enthusiasm, Mr. W. Scott, in responding, said they were celebrating the 28th anniversary of the opening of railways in New South Wales. He had been connected with the railways from their commencement and had the honour of introducing the first locomotives and rolling stock to Sydney. Twenty-eight years ago they could work the whole of the trains with two drivers and a fireman, but to-day there were 256 drivers and firemen fully employed. During his recent visit to America, he took some trouble to make himself acquainted with railway matters in that country. He found that the men on the American railways had to work 10 hours per day—60 hours per week—and they got much smaller wages than were paid to those at that dinner. He must congratulate them upon having a good climate, good pay, and fairly short hours of labour. They had privileges which men following the same calling elsewhere did not enjoy, and they must thank Mr. Sutherland for some of the privileges they enjoyed. (Applause.) Amongst the other toasts which were honoured were those of "The Health of Mr. W. Sixsmith," the first locomotive engine-driver, and "The Holidays."

HYERONIMUS ESTATE AT WELLINGTON.
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.
ON THE GROUND AT NOON.
Under Provisions of the Master in Equity's Decree.
G. H. TAYLOR has received instructions from the trustees to sell, on the above date,
That magnificent estate, THE MEETING OF THE WATERS, junction of Bell and Macquarie, Wellington, containing 250 ACRES.
This estate is one of the best known in the Western district. It is delightfully situated at the JUNCTION OF THE BELL AND MACQUARIE, and backed up by MOUNT ARTHUR, and commanding a magnificent VIEW OF WELLINGTON VALLEY.
The scenery is beautiful, and the estate nestling among the delightful surroundings reminds one strongly of AVONDALE, IN THAT DEAR VALE OF AVOCA, made ever memorable by Moore. It was its wonderful similarity to the spot in Wicklow WHERE THE SWEET WATERS MEET that caused it to be called the MEETING OF THE WATERS.
It was long the residence of the late N. Heyronimus, M.P., and the estate is unquestionably one of THESE RARE GEMS which are alike loved by those who admire GLORIOUS SCENERY and FAIRY SURROUNDINGS.
To any person requiring a residence on which nature has lavished her choicest gifts, the MEETING OF THE WATERS offers an opportunity not repeated twice in a century. Indeed, only for the exigencies of the law—only that in accordance with the will of the late Mr. Hyeronimus it must be now sold—there would be no chance of purchasing it.
There is on the estate a nice stone-built residence, ADORNED WITH EVERYTHING THAT LOVE FOR AN OLD HOME and a cultivated taste could desire. The orchard attached has long been famous.
The Land, which is divided into cultivating and grazing paddocks, is some of the most magnificent in the colony. It is the glorious BLACK SOIL of the rich river flats of the famed WELLINGTON VALLEY, and will grow anything.
THE GRAPES grown at the Meeting of the Waters are magnificent, and either FOR WINE OR TABLE cannot be surpassed. They are of the rich, glorious character peculiar to the famous BURGUNDY COUNTRY of la belle France.
FOR CEREALS the soil has also shown its wonderful adaptability.
This Estate is for POSITIVE SALE, and the auctioneer can confidently say that he has never had in his hands so GRAND A PROPERTY, or one which would command so readily the attention of wealth and taste. Close to the railway, it would make a SPLENDID SUMMER RETREAT for Sydney merchants or North-Western squatters. To the former it would be a sanatorium nestling in a beautiful valley, the scenery of which is unequalled on the mountains; and to the latter it would not only be a home, but a DEPOT FOR STOCK.
Every information gladly given, and cards to view the Estate issued on application to the auctioneer.
LUNCHEON PROVIDED.
Solicitors—Curtiss and Barry, from whom and the auctioneer, all particulars of title, &c., can be obtained.
